ROOSEVELT CHALLENGE IS PUT UP TO TAFT'S MANAGER

Senator Dixon Passes Demand for Presidential Primaries on to Congressman W. B. McKinley.

Washington, March 11.—A copy of Colonel Roosevelt's letter made public today was forwarded this morning by Senator Dixon, his manager, to Director W. B. McKinley, of the Taft campaign bureau.

In an accompanying note Senator Dixon asks whether Mr. McKinley's position is endorsed by President Taft, as Senator Dixon's has been by Colonel Roosevelt.

The Dixon letter said:

"In view of this unqualified endorsement of my challenge of March 4 for a general primary test of the sentiment of republican voters as to their presidential candidate in the approaching campaign I shall be glad to know if Mr. Taft, whose personal representative you are, similarly endroses you in refusing that test.

"JOSEPH M. DIXON,"

Colonel Roosevelt's Letter.

Copies of Colonel Roosevelt's letter on the subject of presidential primaries were given out here last night. The letter was written to Senator Dixon as director of the Roosevelt national headquarters in this city.

Colonel Roosevelt apparently indroses Senator Dixon's challenge to Director McKinley, of the Taft headquarters, for such primaries, and scores Mr. McKinley's reply that "he did not favor changes in the rule of the games while the game was in progress."

Colonel Roosevelt refers to the nominations of federal officeholders which President Taft recently withdrew from the senate and infers that the president's action was taken to provide an "example" for the politicians of the state.

"Practically the entire body of professional politicians are pitted against us in this contest," the colonel wrote, "and in every state and in every congressional district they are led by the officeholders who, with the example before them of what was done in connection with the nominations for local offices in North Carolina, are working as we have rarely seen them work in American political life."

PERIL FOR PEOPLE IN PATENT RULING

A Revolutionary Decision is Made by the Supreme Court Giving All Patentees Immense Power.

Washington, March 11.—A far-reaching decision upholding the right of patentees to absolutely dictate how their patented articles may be sold by retailers, and declaring legal the inventor's monopoly in his selling contracts was made by the supreme court today. It was a divided court ruling, for against this majority view announced by Justice Lurton, three members of the bench—Chief Justice White and Justices Hughes and Lamar—dissented.

Attorney General Wickersham, Solicitor General Lehmann and a large assembly of lawyers were present in court and apparently regarded the decision as epoch-making.

Chief Justice White declared that congress should act to head off "untold evils" that would follow today's construction of the patent laws. He said that under the majority's ruling the patent laws could be stretched so as to include in a patent every conceivable thing used in every American household. The justice arraigned the majority opinion as breaking all precedents, the court in its past history never having failed to do its duty to the whole people and to stand as the protector of every household.

The Majority Ruling.

The case involved alleged infringement in selling supplies for use on a patented rotary mimeograph. A notice on the machine set forth that it was sold on the restriction that it was to be used only with supplies made by the patenting company.

In announcing the opinion Justice Lurton said this conclusion resulted from the proper construction of the patent statutes. The very object of this statute, he said, was to give a monopoly to the inventor, and the fact that he continues that monopoly in his contracts disposing of his articles by charging such price as he pleases, was not illegal.

If such conditions interfered with public policy, he said, congress alone must change the patent law.

Chief Justice White and Justices Hughes and Lamar dissented. The chief justice said he didd so because he hoped a dissenting opinion might serve as an antidote to a poison that might enter in the future into millions of transactions touching every phase of society. Again, he said he hoped to call attention that this was a question of construction and that if untold evils were not to follow congress must act.

Vast Power of the Patentee.

The chief justice said with a limited patent, the patent law as construed by the majority, could now reach out and by contract include within the patent every conceivable thing used in every American household.

With unusual earnestness the chief

WORLD WIDE COAL STRIKE MENACES

Greatest Industrial War Ever Known on the Planet May Soon Pinch All the Great Nations.

New York, March 11.—A world-wide strike of coal minters is regarded by the coal trade as more than a likelihood, if the present negotiations now in progress between the anthracite and bituminous workers and their employers in this country do not result in a settlement of working conditions. With more than a million coal miners on strike in Great Britain and 150,000 miners in Germany voting to quit work to force higher wages a severe coal shortage in Europe is faced.

The anthracite coal operators are drafting their reply to the hard coal workers here for presentation to the miners Wednesday, while next week at Cleveland the bituminous operators and their employes will confer for the purpose of trying to bring about an adjustment of conditions in the soft coal fields.

Coal is being loaded on the Atlantic seaboard for South American and European ports usually supplied by English firms.

Meanwhile consumers are heavy purchasers in the retail market and premiums are being paid on coal for the object of stocking up. It is stated that a month's supply of small steam sizes of anthracite are above ground at different points and that from now on until the end of the month, when the present working agreement with the miners expires, the railroads expect to mine a heavy tonnage.

London, March 11.—The British coal strike, which began on March 1, when nearly 1,000,000 men employed in the collieries of England, Scotland and Wales laid down their tools at a given signal, shows little sign of setlement. Besides the miners another million workers, men and women, employed in factories and mills in all parts of Great Britain have been thrown out of employment because of the impossibility of obtaining fuel to run the machinery.

Prices of provisions and all the necessaries of life have gone up to such an extent that extreme distress exists among the poorer classes.

Railroads have had to restrict their train services, river steamers have had to cease running, the gas and electric supply works have been compelled to restrict their delivery of illuminants, the mail services have been retarded, and many steamers have had to be laid up in harbor.

The government has been trying to bring the miners and the coal owners together, but has not yet succeeded, and it is thought probable that as a final measure a minimum wage bill for miners will have to be introduced in the house of commons.

Many of the mine owners have expressed their sympathy with the principle of a fixed minimum wage, but others decline even to consider the idea.

GERMAN STRIKE IS ON.

Berlin, March 11.—The coal strike went into effect in the Westphalian coal mines today when about fifty per cent of the 350,000 miners employed there obeyed the call of their leaders to cease work. According to reports received from the mines, the first shifts to descend the pits this morning were considerably affected but the results were varied at the different mines. In some districts the cessation of work was practically complete while in others only from 15 to 30 per cent of the men struck.

Large forces of police are on duty everywhere throughout the region, but the strikers generally are peaceable and only two isolated attacks on non-strikers have been reported.

The conflict is quite as much a struggle between the leaders of the rival socialist and non-socialist unions as between the mine owners and their employes. The leaders of the non-socialist Christian union are so far holding their followers well in hand. The success of the strike will depend upon how far the feeling of solidarity with their striking comrades of the socialist miners' unions is carried.

Public opinion in the Westphalian district which was with the miners during the last great strike, is now reported to be largely against the strikers.

The stock exchange took a favorable view of the situation today, coal stocks being firm.

The effect of the strike is not yet noticeable on industry in general nor on the prices of the necessaries of life. The iron works in Westphalia in the grand duchy of Luxumburg and in Lorraine are reported to have supplies of coal sufficient to enable them to carry on for three weeks.

WILL STRIKE AS WARNING.

Paris, March 11.—About two-thirds of the coal miners of France have responded to the appeal of the General Miners' Federation, to strike for 24 hours. This action of the miners is not directed against the mine owners but is designed to show to the government the "solidarity" of the miners and as a warning to parliament that the miners are not satisfied with the working men's old age pension law.

DIE LESS THAN TWO HOURS APART

Husband, 80, and Wife, 78, Not Long Separated by Death.

CASE IS REMARKABLE

[Special to The Sentinel.]

Grover Hill, O., March 11.—Within two hours after the death of Joseph Dudgeon, 80 years of age, on Saturday afternoon, his aged wife, who had reached the age of 78 years, died from shock and grief incident to the death of her husband.

Mr. Dudgeon was a retired farmer, and two weeks ago he sustained painful injuries in a fall upon a sidewalk at his home here. His death was directly attributable to the accident, and it occurred at 4:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Dudgeon, prostrated by grief, passed away at 6:30 o'clock on the same evening.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday, and the aged husband and wife, whom death could not separate, will be buried in one grave. They are survived by two sons and a daughter.

Frank J. Steinacher is now practically convalescent from a severe electrical shock which he sustained in his home a few months ago as the result of crossed wires.

WARM GREETING EXTENDED KNOX

People of San Salvador Show Friendliness for America.

A STRIKING INCIDENT

San Salvador, Salvador, March 11.—It was the turn today of the Salvadoreans to extend a welcome to Philander C. Knox, United States secretary of state, and they did it royally. The foreign minister at the head of a reception committee met the state secretary's party on its arrival at Acautla, where the police band played the national anthems of the two republics.

A special train was in waiting to convey Secretary Knox and the other visitors to San Salvador, where another committee headed by the finance minister met and greeted the American secretary. Guards of honor of infantry and cavalry saluted Mr. Knox and then accompanied his motor car to the residence of Deputy Carl Melendez, which had been placed at the disposal of Mr. and Mrs. Knox during their stay and where a detachment of the cadet corps mounted a guard of honor.

Crowds Are Friendly.

Crowds thronged the streets between the station and Deputy Melendez's house, cheering and waving handkerchiefs and saluting in the friendliest manner. Throughout the night the government buildings were illuminated with myriads of electric glow lamps, and this will be repeated nightly until Wednesday, when Mr. Knox intends to depart.

This morning the president, Dr. Manuel Araujo, received Secretary Knox and his party at the palace. The meeting was of a purely ceremonial character, the formal exchanges having been arranged to take place in the course of the state dinner tonight.

There is no diplomatic question pending between the United States and Salvador, but the state secretary hopes by his visit to strengthen the commercial relations between the two republic and to help to remove the suspicion which has recently been prevalent of a policy of imperialism on the part of the United States.

American Disgraces Himself.

As the launch conveying Mr. Knox approached the customs house a salute of nineteen guns was fired, the Salvadorean colors were dipped and the stars and stripes run up, while the band on the pier played the "Star Spangled Banner." Every one present except one man uncovered.

A policeman strode up to him and shouted: "Take your hat off. That's the American anthem." The man replied:

"I am an American myself."

Tho policeman replied: "Then more shame for you," and knocked off his hat, which was blown into the water.

When the special left Acajutla for San Salvador it was preceded by two other trains, the first of which carried 100 soldiers and the second a machine gun. When asked why such precautions were taken Gen. Muller said: "The precautions are taken only against foreigners. There is nothing to fear from the Salvadoreans. We have under surveillance twenty-five or thirty strangers, but they are all Americans."

FULFILL SUICIDE PACT.

Chicago, March 11.—Apparently fulfilling a suicide agreement, Adolph Gerlink, a carpenter, and his sweetheart, Frances Soucek, went to a room in the home of Gerlink's sister last night and turned on the gas. They were found dead in each other's arms today clad in the garments they had worn to a dance.

EARTHQUAKE OF GREAT SEVERITY

Seismic Shock Recorded in United States Was Not Far Away.

MAY BE WEST INDIES

Washington, March 11.—Heavy earth shocks were recorded early today by the seismograph at Georgetown university. The vibrations began at 5:35 o'clock and lasted twenty-five minutes, the most violent at 5:40. The disturbance, which is believed to have been of extraordinary violence, occurred somewhere within two thousand miles of Washington.

FELT IN NEW YORK.

New York, March 11.—An earthquake of unusual severity was recorded today by the seismograph at Brooklyn college. The oscilliations began at 5:38 o'clock, reached the maximum at 5:40 and continued until 5:55. The movements were much stronger in the north-south field than from east to west. The estimated distance of the disturbance from New York is 1,500 miles.

RECORDED IN CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 11.—A severe earthquake shock, emanating from a distance of about 1,000 to 1,500 miles, probably in the West Indies, was recorded by the seismograph at St. Ignatius observatory today, according to Father Odenbach, the curator.

The first preliminary shock came at 4:31:55 a. m., the main at 4:34:35, the maxium at 4:36:22 and the end at 5:10 a. m.

FELL AND FRACTURED LEG.

J. A. Miller, 1203 Stophlet street, fell on the sidewalk today and fractured one of his legs above the knee. He wastaken to St. Joseph's hospital.

A lad named Pranger, eight years old, and living at 1217 Ohio street, also fell on the sidewalk and sustained a bad gash in his scalp.

THINK MONEY WAS BURNED.

Charles Wybourn, 337 Baker street, put $80 under his coal box after he had wrapped it in an old newspaper and made the bundle look so worthless that he thought nobody would ever think it contained money.

He succeeded admirably. Florence Wybourn, his daughter-in-law, decided to sweep up the kitchen, so she moved the coal box, found a lot of old paper and stuff under it, swept it on a dust pan and put it in the stove, where it was destroyed.

The case was reported to the police and the woman went to headquarters today and said she had not seen the money and that if it was under the coal box she threw it inthe stove.

A big business deal was consummated this morning when the Pickard House Furnishing company purchased the H. J. Ash store on Columbia street, with its entire stock of stoves and kitchen furnishings, the store fixtures, lease and good will of the business.

The tranaction is of more than ordinary interest from the fact that Mr. Ash is believed to be the oldest merchant in Fort Wayne, having been in business here for fifty-two years. The furnace end of the business is retained by Mr. Ash, while in the change Fred H. Ash, who has been active in the management of the Ash store for some years, will take a position as traveling salesman for the Michigan Stove company, of Detroit.

Will Be Largest in State.

The Pickard company will at once connect its new purchase by the means of arches with the main store immediately to the west, and both stores will be under the personal supervision of Peter E. Pickard, president of the company.

It is the intention of the Pickard company to continue to sell the lines which have been handled by Mr. Ash, but the business will be kept distinct from the stove department of the present Pickard establishment. The combining of these two stove departments will form beyond all question the largest stove store in the state.

Mr. Ash intends remaining in general charge of his furnace business, but it is possible that in order to facilitate the business he may organize a stock company to handle it.

Long Career in Business.

Mr. Ash, who is 73 years of age, and still vigorous and active, has had a long and honorable business career in Fort Wayne, and he is very widely known. He came to Fort Wayne fifty-two years ago—on February 15, 1860, and started a little tinshop on the north side of East Columbia street. In August of the same year he took E. Agnew, of Pittsburg, into partnership for a term of five years and the firm became Ash & Agnew. Mr. Agnew sold his interests to Frederick McCulloch, and the firm name was changed to Ash & McCulloch. At the end of three years Mr. Ash sold out to Mr. McCulloch, and for a brief time was out of business. Then, on August 1, 1871, Mr. Ash re-embarked in business in stoves and tinware with wholesale and retail lines, which he has continued down to the present time. In all those years the Ash store has been located on East Columbia street, and within a stone's throw of the spot on which Mr. Ash embarked in business in Fort Wayne more than half a century ago.

The purchase of the Ash store by the Pickard House Furnishing company means that the business of that company, already very extensive, will be materially enlarged.

SUFFRAGISTS WILL PLEAD.

Washington, March 11.—Woman suffrage will be advocated before the senate suffrage committee next Wednesday by a delegation of the most prominent women in American public life. Arrangements have been made for an open hearing and addresses will be made by Rev. Anna Shaw, Miss Jane Adams, Prof. Sophonisba H. Breckenridge, of Chicago; Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Alice Stone Blackewell, Mrs. Mary Ware Bennett, Miss Bessie Ashley, Mrs. Harriet Burton Laidlaw and Miss Inez Milholland.

The Ladies' auxiliary to the Moose will give an entertainment Wednesday afternoon at the Moose hall in the Lau block, beginning at 2:30 o'clock promptly.

A Glass of Ginger Ale

THIS little narrative, detailing a happening of a few short years ago, will doubtless come as a surprise to a former pastor of the Wayne Street Methodist Episcopal church, for this is probably the first telling of it in cold print, although the druggist himself tells it with a good deal of delight. This druggist, while waiting on a number of soda water customers, turned to receive the order of a strange gentleman who occupied one of the stools in front of the fountain.

"What will yours be?" inquired the druggist.

"Ginger ale," responded the customer.

The druggist looked at the customer and smiled, and then after drawing the glass partly full of the brown beverage, stepped behind the prescription counter, where he proceeded to fill the glass up with another brown liquid.

One of the clerks watched him with excited interest.

"What are you doing?" asked the clerk.

"I'm putting a little whisky in that man's ginger ale," responded the druggist. "He gave me a wink when I took his order."

"Well, for goodness sake, don't do that, man!" exclaimed the clerk in alarm.

"Why not?"

"Why! Because he's a preacher. He's the new minister at the Wayne Street Methodist church—Mr. Preston."

PRESCRIPTIONS CAREFULLY CONFOUNDED
PALE PILLS FOR PINK PEOPLE

"For goodness sake, don't do that!"

The trembling hand of the druggist loosened almost sufficiently to drop the glass. But he held on to it and proceeded to give the customer the requested ginger ale.

"Gee, that was a narrow one!" he said, afterward. "He must have gotten a piece of dust in his eye, 'cause I thought sure he winked at me."

MOVING PICTURE OF CHAMP CLARK

Speaker Presides at Mock Session to Give Machine a Chance.

A DAY IN CONGRESS

Washington, March 11.—The house will be in order, said Speaker Clark today, bringing down his gavel and addressing a dignified gathering of a handful of pages, twice that number of house employes, three charwomen and a group of New England sightseers, who had strolled into the chamber. Then the speaker went through the motions of presiding for the benefit of a battery of moving picture machines. When three films had been made, the leader of the picture experts thanked the speaker.

"Let me thank you," said Mr. Clark, who was plainly bored, "if for nothing else at least for this relief."

Then he disappeared into his office. The apparatus, with its tangled skein of wires and batteries of powerful mercury lights, was cleared away just in time to permit the house actually to meet at noon.

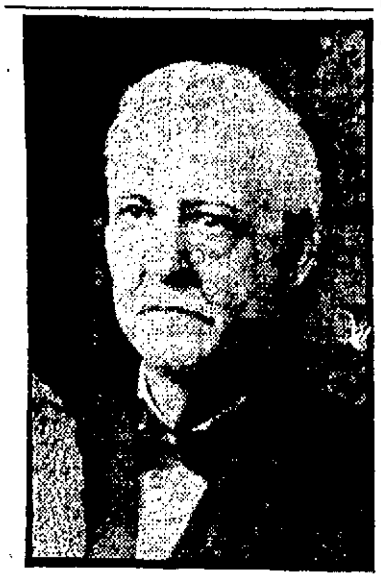
C. H. CURRIER PASSES AWAY

Former Manager of Western Union Telegraph in Fort Wayne.

HE WAS 76 YEARS OLD

Charles H. Currier, 76 years old and former manager of the Western Union Telegraph offices in Fort Wayne, died at 8 o'clock Sunday morning at Hope hospital, following an illness of several months. Death was due to senility.



C. H. CURRIER,
Former Western Union Manager, Who is Dead.

In recent years Mr. and Mrs. Currier have been living in retirement in Philadelphia. They came to Fort Wayne in August last for a visit with their children, and a little later Mr. Currier's health began breaking rapidly. The aged man was removed from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ida B. Eckert, 221 West Wayne street, to Hope hospital, Saturday evening.

Mr. Currier was a native of Maine, born at South Berwick, Feb. 22, 1836, and in 1860 he was united in marriage to Miss Viola Mitchell. Four years later they removed to Fort Wayne and this city was their home for thirty-eight years. Two years ago they celebrated the golden anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Currier was the predecessor of O. L. Perry as manager of the local offices of the Western Union Telegraph company, and also for a time conducted a grocery at Main and Barr streets.

Surviving relatives include the aged widow and the following children: Mrs. Ida B. Eckert, 221 West Wayne street; Mrs. B. F. Rousseau, West Main street; Mrs. Harry Stirk, 135 East Woodland avenue; John L. Currier, Detroit; Charles A. Currier, Fred Currier, Burleigh Currier and Mrs. Edward Cornely, Philadelphia, and Mrs. H. H. Matlick, Maple Shade, N. J. Sixteen grandchildren and two great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be conducted from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Ida B. Eckert, 221 West Wayne street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. A. J. Folsom and Rev. Mr. Ehle will officiate.

The interment at Lindenwood will be private. The pall bearers are John Dreibelbiss, S. F. Bowser, Dr. J. W. Thompson, O. L. Perry, D. S. Eckert and Will Eckert.

PROBING PADDED PAYROLL.

Cleveland Concern is Swindled Out of $100,000.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 11.—County Prosecutor Cline today began investigation of an alleged payroll padding, whereby the Norcross company, a marble concern, is said to have been defrauded of $100,000.

The Chicago police have been asked to watch a former employe now in that city.

Twice lately the Norcross company has been in the public eye. Two weeks ago John C. Jurgens, one of its clerks, employed at a salary said to be sixty dollars a month, left the city. Subsequently creditors brought bankruptcy proceedings. At the hearing it was brought out that Jurgens had spent money at a rate of $50,000 a year.

DIGS UP STOLEN TREASURE.

Salem, Ore., March 11.—It became known here today that Convict Charles Barrett, who recently led the warden of the penitentiary to a place where $7,000 in gold bars, stolen from the steamer Humboldt, was hidden, has paroled by Gov. West. Barrett disappeared yesterday in company with secret service agents, having agreed to lead them to the hiding place near here, of still more buried gold, said to aggregate $27,000. The location of the second cache is known only to Barrett and secret service men.

MORE TROUBLE IN MILL STRIKE CITY

Police Make Several More Arrests in Lawrence After Disorder.

A SETTLEMENT NEAR

Lawrence, Mass., March 11.—A demonstration early todayin front of the police station by several hundred strikers and sympathizers, including many women, threatened for a time to develop into a serious disturbance. The crowd assembled after the arrest of a woman striker and became so menacing that the police had to use their clubs.

The police claim that the woman displayed a revolver while engaged in picket duty. On the way to the station house with their captive the officers were followed by a crowd of several hundred persons. Just before the station was reached the crowd surged in on the police and it seemed for a time that an organized attempt to rescue the prisoner was to be made. The police succeeded in driving back the crowd. Six of the leaders in the demonstration were arrested and four of them were women.

The strikers today made the biggest demonstration of picketing since the strike began. It was estimated that more than 5,000 persons paraded.

The conference committee of the strikers expected to go to Boston today for a conference with the officers of the woolen mill company and the legislative committee on conciliation. Settlement with the American Woolen company was looked upon as likely.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF 81 YEARS

Mrs. Mary J. Wadge, Pioneer Resident, Yields to Death.

OTHER DEATHS TODAY

Mrs. Mary J. Wadge, 81 years of age, widow of the late George Wadge, died at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning at her home, 1007 East Lewis street. Death was due to senility.

Mrs. Wadge was one of the pioneer residents of the city, having come to Fort Wayne thirty-eight years ago. She was born in Ashburton, England, and her husband was for many years identified with the old woolen mills in this city.

Mrs. Wadge was widely and favorably known and was a devoted member of Trinity Episcopal church. Surviving are two daughters—Mrs. Andrew Archer and Miss Georgiana Wadge, a teacher in the Harmer schools.

Funeral services from the residence Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. E. W. Averill officiating.

LUDWICK.

Esdrus Ludwick, until recently a merchant at Sheldon died at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at his home in Pleasant township after an illness of many months. Mr. Ludwick was 62 years of age.

He was born at Newville in 1849, locating in Sheldon thirteen years ago and conducting a grocery and meat market until failing health compelled him to retire a year ago. The widow and these children survive—Davis and Peter Ludwick, of Sheldon, and Charles Ludwick, of the United States navy; Mrs. George Landsdoefer, of Sheldon; Mrs. E. Hiser, of Poe; Mrs. G. Bubb, of Sheldon; Mrs. P. Redding, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. L. Swaim, of Pleasant township. There are also four brothers—William and Fremont Ludwick, of California; Jasper Ludwick, of Marion, and Joseph Ludwick, of Leo. There is one sister, Mrs. David Wolf, of Sheldon, and twenty-seven grandchildren, also one great grandchild.

Funeral services Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the residence and at 10 o'clock from the St. Aloysius Catholic church.

justice declared that now the patentee might become a patent law unto himself, monopolizing things not novel nor new.

In emphasizing the extent to which the decision would reach and how far already restrictions were placed on the sale of patented articles, Chief Justice White told of buying a razor recently.

"When I got home I found I had become an infringer on a patent because I had paid for the razor the price I had been asked and nothing more," said he.

The only safeguard the country had possessed against this increasing evil, he declared, had been the hope that the supreme court would hold the restrictions void.

At least, he declared, the majority should have placed a limit on its decision by which public policy would not allow the patent law to be used as a screen to commit wrongs and work monopoly in articles not patentable.

Department of justice officials regard the patent decision as extremely important in the administratio nof the Sherman anti-trust law which is being invoked in a number of cases where it is alleged that patent rights are being overstepped to restrain trade. The case against the United States Shoe Machinery company, it was declared in all probability, would not be affected by the decision. In that prosecution the government charges a combination and agreements to connect various patented shoe machines one with another to restrain trade.

A MISSISSIPPI DUEL.

Vicksburg, Miss., March 11.—Robert Norwood, manager of a big Mississippi plantation, and John Elliott quarreled during the discussion of a business deal. Both drew weapons and began to shoot. Elliott fell, shot to death. Norwood, pierced by several bullets, checked the flow of blood from his wounds till help came, then he was placed in an automobile and hurried to Vicksburg. He was placed in a local hospital this afternoon. There is a chance for his recovery.

CALLED OFF THE MEETING

Tonight's Anti-Bond Issue Demonstration is Cancelled.

NO HEAT AVAILABLE

When it was discovered this morning that there are no heating facilities in the Barva barn at Spy Run avenue and East Superior street, the committee in charge of the anti-bond issue demonstration scheduled there for this evening promptly cancelled the meeting. No other suitable quarters could be obtained on short notice.

The meeting was announced under the presumption that the building could be heated comfortably, and Marshall Cominavish was to have presided, while the invitation had been issued to all who desired to speak against the proposed $200,000 bond issue by the park board to attend and participate in the program. It is expected that another location will be selected for the meeting at a later date.

TINY SUFFRAGIST MAKES A SPEECH

Nine-Year-Old Girl Heard in Behalf of Her Sex in Tennessee.

PLEADS FOR BALLOT

Nashville, Tenn., March 11.—Little Miss Annie B. Hooper, nine-year-old daughter of Gov. Hooper, has the distinction of delivering the first real suffrage speech ever made in the Tennessee state house. It was all of her own planning.

Appearing at the capitol early today she solicited the aid of her father's stenographer in copying the speech, after which, collecting her especial friends among officials and Tennessee statesmen, she led the way to the hall of the house where, mounting the rostrum, the young suffragette said:

"My fellow citizens: I come pleading for you men to let the women vote. Do you believe in the way Mrs. Pankhurst is trying to get votes? No, I do not. I do not believe in smashing up the windows but I do think you ought to let us vote. Why shouldn't we help to make the laws of our country? The ignorant men are allowed to vote, but the educated women are denied this privilege. This is not right and every sensible man knows it."

IDENTIFIED THE PHOTOGRAPH.

A photograph of Arthur Peters, under arrest at Akron with John Sweeny for a diamond theft, has been identified by clerks at the Besse jewelry store as a man who fleeced the concern out of a diamond. He is also thought to have obtained another stone here by taking it from a tray while the clerks waiting on him were busy.

BLAISING TO QUIT JOB.

Oscar Blaising, who has been for several years very efficiently filling the position of clerk to the building inspector, has tendered his resignation and on April 1 will take employment with the Grace Construction company.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

NEW HAVEN NEWS.

New Haven, Ind., March 11.—The pupils of the public schools will give an entertainment about the first week in April.

"Bubbles" Hargrave has signed his 1912 contract with the Terre Haute baseball club at an increase of salary.

Mr. and Mrs. George Killworth and daughter, Miss Hazel, will leave in May on a prospecting trip through Oregon.

Michael Ankney, formerly of this place, has resigned his position as section foreman for the Ohio Electric at Monroeville.

John Timme, who formerly conducted a restaurant here has assumed the management of a leading hotel in Detroit.

William Bremer, who has conducted the New Haven milk route for the past six years, has sold the same to Ernest Zelt, an experienced dairy man, who will take possession April first. During his years in business Mr. Bremer never missed a trip.

The condition of Mrs. S. B. Dustman, who is ill with pneumonia at the home of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. I. S. Richards, at Goshen, is greatly improved. She is partaking of nourishment each day and is able to sit up at times.

Frank Carr in company with his sister will leave this week for Crafton, W. Va., where they will reside.

J. A. Graham, candidate for commissioner, was in town Saturday.

E. P. Brooks and family moved to Fort Wayne Saturday.

Albert Welling, who sustained a fall recently, has resumed his position as clerk in the Boston store.

Pat Ryan has returned home from a visit with James Chamberlain and family at Albion.

Benedict Lee, of Detroit, was the guest of relatives here several days last week.

Oscar Elson moved onto a farm near Wolcottville last week.

Ira Lare transacted business at Monroeville Saturday.

Fred B. Leighty, editor of the St. Joe News, was the guest of S. B. Dustman Friday.

The followings pupils of St. John's Catholic school received the best grades in spelling: Alice Tibbet, Loretta Dennis, Marguerite Clark, Mary Becker, Cecelia Gabet, Alban Becker, Robert Vachon, Marcellus Becker, Hilda Kamp, Alberta Becker, Grace Jacquay, Florence Schuckman, Lillian Rosenberger, Alma Cour, Gertrude Kamp, Elmer Schlink, Walter Jacquay, Aloysius Becker, Regina Vachon, Lenora Ehinger, Germanne Dennis and Celesta Blaising.

Henry Jacquay, who had the misfortune to fall recently is recovering from his injuries.

Miss Gertrude Nuttle, who has been a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, is expected home soon.

Pat Ryan was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Margaret Finan, at Payne, several days last week.

Harry Kalhon and family, of Woodburn, moved here last week.

Miss Inez Gorrell, who was severely burned while experimenting with chemicals at the public school, the lamp exploding, is recovering nicely.

Ephriam Adams, of Michigan, was in town last week on business and sold to C. A. Frack two residence lots in the east part of town.

Lemuel Jacquay, who was seriously injured in a fall, has been removed to St. Joseph's hospital. He is suffering from a fracture of the base of the brain.

At a meeting held at the M. E. church H. C. Helmick was elected delegate and Emmet Harper reserve delegates to the annual conference which will be held at Wabash, March 29.

Miss Clara Jacquay, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Margaret Belling, of Louisville, Ky., were summoned home last week owing to the illness of their father, Lemuel Jacquay.

J. Harlor is confined to his home ill with stomach trouble.

State Superintendent of Schools Greathouse, in company with Prof. J. N. Study and County Superintendent Felger were in town Friday for the purpose of determining whether or not a commission shall be issued to the New Haven high school. It is expected that the commission will be granted, as the local schools have already been using the regular high school course for some time.

His Own Bills.

Butchers are not generally credited with an especially sensitive temperament, but New York has one member of the guild whose skin must be extraordinarily thin. At any rate, he goes to unusual lengths to exonerate himself from the charge of extortion. Above the cashier's window he has hung this sign:

"If prices are high don't blame me. They have hit me, too. Here is the meat bill of my own family. Read it." Then follows an itemized account of the chops, steaks, roasts and cat's meat consumed by the butcher's dependents in one week. The prices recorded are sufficiently altitudinous to appease the most disgruntled customers, and they settle their own bills with good grace.

HARLAN NEWS.

Harlan, Ind., March 11.—Rev. J. B. Cook, of Denver, Ind., came for a short visit with his son, William, who is attending high school here; arriving Thursday noon and returning home Friday, the son accompanying him for a few days' visit with his mother. Rev. Mr. Cook was a former pastor of the M. E. church here and kindly preached for the people on Thursday evening. The present pastor, Rev. F. V. Westhafer, is holding a series of meetings.

William Miller moved his family to Michigan, leaving Thursday. He will engage in farming. His father, "Didds" Miller, of Milan Center, bought his village property and will move to town.

Eli Darling, present owner of the Stucky property, west of town, will occupy it in the near future.

Dr. Thompson has bought the Lon Repp residence, sold a few days ago to satisfy a claim for school money borrowed of the county.

Sanford Leon Smith, an invalid child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm Smith, was buried Thursday. Rev. Ella Siebert conducted the service from the M. P. church. The remains were interred in the Maysville cemetery.

Mrs. Ezra Guilford, who was operated on for hernia at Hope hospital, is in a hopeful condition with every prospect for recovery.

David Goldsmith, a student at Valparaiso, Ind., came home on a short vacation. He should be back in school, but instead is down with the measles. None of the family, excepting the father, has had the disease. Two brothers and a sister are also sick. The house has assumed the appearance of a hospital. Wm. Zimmerman, also home from the same school, is stricken.

G. A. Reeder is acting cashier of the Harlan State bank in the absence of the cashier, John Golds, who is sick with the measles.

John Doering sent a bunch of horses to the city market Friday.

Burt Smith, of the city police force, attended the funeral of Sanford L. Smith Thursday.

The marriage of Miss Beryl Boston to DeGroff Swartz is announced for April. Miss Boston was the honor guest at a granite shower given last Thursday afternoon by Miss Zella Reichelderfer and Mrs. Mildred Miller at the home of the former. The afternoon was spent in contests. Those winning prizes were Misses Beryl Boston, Berdien James and Mrs. Dora Blackburn. A two-course luncheon was served at 4 o'clock, after which the guests unwound the spider web, finding at the end of their string the favors due them. The honor guest found her granite ware, with a good recipe from each person present. The decorations were in white and yellow. The same color scheme was carried out at the luncheon. Those present were Mrs. Dora Blackburn, Mrs. Mary Gruber, Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, Mrs. Lura Thimlar, Mrs. Florence Dix, Mrs. Mildred Goldsmith, Miss Berdien James and Miss Beryl Boston.

Her Reward.

The cook for a well-known Seattle family left, and no other could be obtained, so the lady of the house did the cooking herself, with such satisfactory results that, after a month, her husband gave her a beautiful set of sables as a token of his appreciation of the good dinners he had enjoyed.

Of course the neighbors soon heard of this, and when the cook left in another equally well-known family the lady of that house said to her husband:

"Well, the cook has gone and I'm not going to bother to get another. I'm going to do the cooking myself, deary. You heard what Mr. So-and-So gave his wife when she did the cooking?"

And, putting her arms round his neck, she cooed: "What shall I get for my cooking?"

"Woman," said her husband, pushing her away, "you will get a long, black veil!"—Saturday Evening Post.

SAFE REMEDY ENDS CATARRH MISERIES

Gives Instant Relief, Cures and Prevents Catarrh and Cold in the Head.

The quickest, best and safest way to cure catarrh or a cold in the head is by using a remedy that will "touch the spot" and do its work quickly without leaving any bad effects. Ely's Cream Balm, which is applied to the nostrils or rubbed on the throat or chest gets right at the root of the trouble and instantly relieves even the worst case of catarrh or cold. A few minutes after applied you can feel a loosening up in the head, the pain and soreness are gone, the sense of taste, smell and hearing comes back and you feel like a different person.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, heals and strengthens inflamed membranes, takes away that stuffed up feeling and dull pain in the head, relieves the throat soreness and stops the nasty discharge which is the cause of the disgusting hawking, spitting, blowing of the nose, and foul breath. Hay fever victims who are made miserable by fits of sneezing, coughing and wheezing get instant and permanent relief by the use of this simple remedy.

Don't suffer another minute. Ely's Cream Balm will relieve you immediately, and a 50 cent bottle will more than likely work a complete cure. All druggists sell it. Special Agents, Meyer Bros. Co.

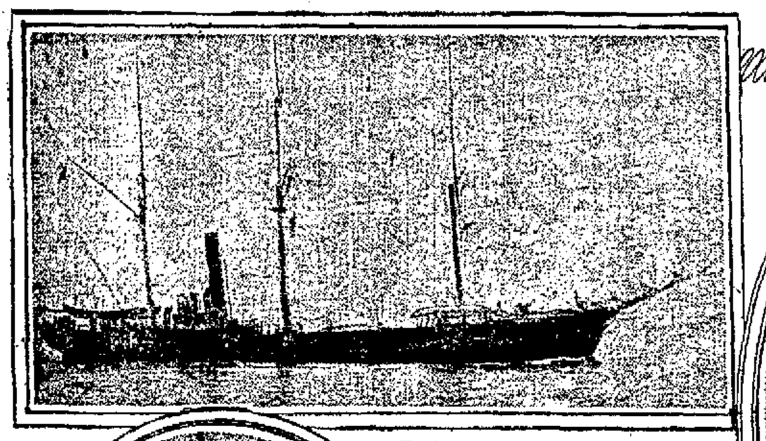
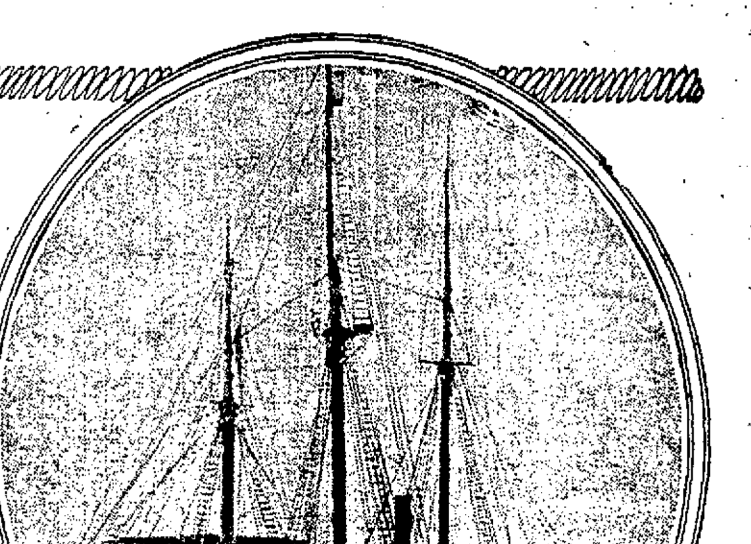
Two Explorers Who Were in Race for South Pole and the Ships in Which the Expeditions Started



THE TERRA NOVA.



THE FRAM.

CAPTAIN R.F. SCOTT

The controversy as to whom belong the honors for the discovery of the South Pole—Scott, the Englishman, or Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, is destined to become as vigorous as the Cook-Peary affair. It was first reported in the cable despatches that Amundsen had declared that Scott had reached the Pole. Now he denies having telegraphed anything regarding Captain Scott and comes out with the positive announcement that he was the first to reach the farthest south. His first message to civilization read:—"Pole attained 14th. 17 December, 1911. All [illegible] Captain Scott's side of the puzzle has not yet been heard.

PREFERENTIAL PRIMARIES.

The merits of the preferential primary in presidential contests does not reside in the fact that just now they are confusingly embodied in a difference of opinion between the Roosevelt faction and the Taft faction of the republican party. The preferential primary is a measure not of politics in the narrower sense of that term but of popular government. If Colonel Roosevelt and his supporters, in having seized upon this measure as an expedient of their political necessities gain an advantage it is their good fortune. It adds nothing to and can take nothing from the merit of the proposal. Certainly the people should have as complete voice in the naming of their candidates for nomination as they have in choosing from the candidates after they have been nominated. More often than not a presidential nominee represents the desires and advantages of the politicians, of the officeholders and of the great special interests than the free choice and worthy aspirations of the masses of the party. The preferential primaries, now legally provided for in several states, should be the legally established procedure in all the states. That will restore party government to the people, where it should reside. It will be a demonstrated weakness of Mr. Taft's position that he is forced by circumstances to oppose the plan. The Roosevelt challenge hurts, and that is the long and short of it. The great mass of the people believe in it and sooner or later they will demand it. The democratic party will soon be forced to recognize this demand.

The South Bend Tribune celebrated its fortieth anniversary last Saturday. It was established as a weekly newspaper in March, 1872, by the late Alfred B. Miller and Elmer Crockett. Mr. Crockett is still at the head of the organization and Mr. Fred A. Miller is editor-in-chief. The Tribune survived the vicissitudes of newspapers in general, prospered, issued a daily edition and became not only an institution but a part of the great business development of the community and an intimate factor in the daily life of its people. It is with uncommon pleasure that The Sentinel congratulates the Tribune and its publishers and editors. It is not only a conspicuous example of modern newspaper making viewed from business and mechanical standpoints, but is a yet more conspicuous example of clean and high-minded journalism. The Tribune covers its field with masterly thoroughness. It is devoted to upholding the best in its city. Its tone is lofty and its political policies, though partisan, are fair. It is one of the great newspapers of Indiana and if it receives all it deserves to receive it will flourish for another forty years increasingly prosperous and influential.

The re-election of Dr. L. Park Drayer to the presidency of the Playgrounds association gives assurance that the admirable work of that organization will continue to go forward. Much has been done, but more remains to do, and it is well that this fine project is to remain under the direction of those who have already achieved such great things for the children of Fort Wayne. Dr. Drayer, Mr. O. N. Guldlin, vice president; Senator S. B. Fleming, second vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth J. Dawson, recording secretary; Mrs. Sam Taylor, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frankie J. Rabus, field secretary, and Mrs. Gart Shober, treasurer, who now make up the official roster of the association, have all been enthusiastic and devoted in their labors for the development of playgrounds and that the work is recommitted to their hands is a splendid augury for the complete success of the movement.

It will be remembered that Commander Peary came in about a month behind Doc Cook. There is still plenty of time for Captain Scott to wander in with a contesting claim for the south pole honors. The explorers and scientists are all agreed that Captain Amundsen's claim is indisputable; but it will be remembered also that Doc Cook had no trouble convincing the Danish savants that his claims were genuine and that he reached the arctic pole as he asserted. The worst sentiment manifested in Great Britain, which was the most hopeful rival for this polar distinction, is disappointment, not jealousy; and in that respect the situation is much happier than that which invested the Cook-Peary rivalry.

Senator LaFollette is not yet out of the race. He will stick, if his temper has been well indicated, and go into the convention with his own state and parts of some others. There is every prospect that the trial between Taft and Roosevelt will be stubborn and close and with a nice little bunch of votes handy Senator LaFollette may be able to have a very large say in the convention.

The Kansas City Star notes that the "mustache is on the wane." Quite true, doubtless; but which one? It may be observed as significant that neither Champ Clark nor Woodrow Wilson wears anything of the sort.

The Taft-Roosevelt contest now having taken on the aspects of a real fight, it was not in human reason to expect The Colonel to keep out of it.

There is more reason for abolishing the smoke nuisance than that it will be prettier not to have it.

THE FARCICAL STANDARD OIL REORGANIZATION.

(New York American.)

Nine months ago the supreme court of the United States ordered the dissolution of the Standard Oil company.

It gave the Standard group six months to reorganize and adopt legal methods, and it ruled that "hereafter, in all attempts to prove a corporation guilty in restraint of trade, the government should establish an "unreasonable restraint."

On the day this decision was handed down the stock of Standard Oil was quoted at $675 a share.

Yesterday it sold at $890 a share, the highest point it has ever reached and an advance of 215 points over May 10 last, when the corporation was outlawed.

This startling advance following the dissolution of the trust means not only that it is still a monopoly, but that it is more of a monopoly than it ever was.

It means that the decision heralded as a body blow at violators of the Sherman anti-trust law was really a benevolent pat on the back.

It means that, split into thirty-three subsidiaries, the oil monopoly is secure from governmental prosecution, which immunity makes its securities more valuable.

It means that John D. Rockefeller's own holdings, instead of being worth $167,000,000, as they were nine months ago, are now worth $220,000,000, and Mr. Rockefeller holds only one-quarter of the capital.

This skyrocket advance proves that the opinion of this newspaper, two days after the court finding, was true, namely, that—

"The practical effect of the Standard Oil decision is to reduce the Sherman anti-trust law to punk and putty;" that:

"The supreme court has removed the wooden fence and as yet no stone fence has been built—the trust cattle are at large."

The trust cattle are not only at large—they are fattening as they never fattened before.

The oil trust has set an example for the tobacco trust and for every other monopoly which shall be judged guilty under like circumstances.

And the American people have the edifying spectacle of seeing monopolies condemned as illegal continuing to do business, under new names, with greater profit to their owners anad greater cost to consumers.

DR. CAMPBELL ON AMERICA'S PERIL.

(Indianapolis News.)

The Rev. Dr. R. J. Campbell, of the City temple, London, who recently was with us outlining his "new religion," which was not to many so brand-new, is back in London talking interestingly about "America." It has always been a marvel how foreign people can see the thing that the people of a county can not so clearly see, though it is said to be menacing their very existence as a nation. The London divine has found "America's Peril"—as it is headlined in the papers. It is out social land industrial problem—"the wide gulf between capital and labor;" and, back of it, he notes the great tide of immigration. "The whole situation is highly combustible; anything might happen, and there are many who are ready for organized violence."

It may be so, but it may be that being here just when the McNamara affair was at its most sensational stage, he saw a distorted picture. It is possible also that he had been deeply impressed with the conditions in San Francisco and Los Angeles at the time and had mistaken them for national conditions. We have no doubt that our industrial and social problem is serious. But we do not at this time believe that it menaces the future of the nation any more than does the negro problem which has long been pointed to by most Englishmen as our "national peril."

It seems strange to us that the Rev. Dr. Campbell should, in London, talk about a gulf and antagonism between capital and labor being our national menace. If there is anywhere a gulf between capital and labor and a menacing situation it is in the very country of which London is the capital. We know that the old order changes there; it has changed so much that one might speculate on whether the British government is the same one that existed even a few years ago. If there is today any government which seems to be more bent than any other toward a socialistic future it is that of the British isles. We doubt if our social and industrial conditions menace our future so much—but then it may be that no man sees clearly that which is at home.

Mr. A. D. Cressler, Hon. Montgomery Hamilton, Louis Rastetter and John Peters were at Defiance yesterday to examine Mr. E. J. Pennington's business with a view to going into his stock company to be formed here. Mr. Peters says the committee was very favorably impressed.

City Treasurer Henry Berghoff protests against the city papers giving him four boys within a couple of months, says he owns no city bonds, and for that reason he has no interest in increasing the population of Fort Wayne in such an extravagant manner. It is his brother, Herman Berghoff, who was presented with twins yesterday.

S. C. Lumbard was today named as receiver for the Citizens' Street Railway company and was authorized to lay a double track on Calhoun street, issuing receiver's certificates in payment therefor. Within a day or two the street car company has been offered $70,000 for its property. This price would pay off the bonds and accrued interest amounting possibly to $40,000 and give the stockholders from 50 to 75 cents on the dollar for the money they invested. On the street the stock is solicited at 25 cents on the dollar, with few sales.

LEGAL BRIEFS NOT ONLY KIND

Peculiar Relations of a Widow Client and Her Lawyer Discussed.

DOES STUNT AS CHEF

Oakland, Cal., March 11.—Porterhouse steaks a la habeas corpus, oyster subjected to writs of certiorari and chops mandamused on the gridiron with a liberal sauce of simon pure romance formed the basis of relations on which E. T. McMurray, an attorney, of San Francisco, sued Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, a widow of striking appearance, who lives in Alameda, for $500 counsel fees.

These combinations, says the Call, were extended over several months, the narrative of which touched numerous tender spots in 1909 and 1910. Mr. McMurray said that he was busy rendering legal services. Mrs. McLaughlin, surprised and vexed, said it was good fellowship on his part, reaching a climax when he doffed his legal accoutrements and donned an apron and cap in her kitchen.

Dreams of good cooking pervaded her story, the dust of ponderous legal researches settled deeply over his chronicle. But as Mrs. McLaughlin ate of the good things he prepared, Judge Arnot decided that she also absorbed his words of legal lore, seasoned with spice and thyme and tiny cloves of garlic though they were. She was ordered to pay $380 at the close of the varied day's proceedings.

Lawyer Acts as Chef.

Mrs. McLaughlin has a comfortable bank account founded on her numerous business enterprises and realty holdings at Fresno. She wore a blue tailored suit, platinum jewelry, a picture hat trimmed with ostrich plumes and heavy lace around her throat. Toward the close of the arguments she wept into a bit of filmy fabric in her hand.

It wasn't the money, she said; it was the shock of learning that she had entertained a barrister disguised as a friend and a notable chef.

Mr. McMurray testified that Mrs. McLaughlin called many times at his office, had summoned him into her home at San Francisco and had telephoned to him from Fresno while pressing business matters were on her mind. One was the alteration of a contract to sell her half interest in Fresno realty to O. C. Teague for $120,000, against which he said he advised her. Another was the collection of a loan of $10,000 from the estate of her daughter's ward on her daughter coming of age, and another was the collection of $2,000 as first payment on a sale. There were more than 100 conferences on these points, says Mr. McMurray.

Difference Over Advice.

"Mrs. McLaughlin testified that she talked with Mr. McMurray on these points, but only as she did with other friends, and that she never asked nor took his advice, as she hired an attorney by the year at Fresno.

"I frequently called at his office," said Mrs. McLaughlin, "and I used to take him to my house for dinner. He was a fine cook and it was fun for him to prepare the dinners.

"Once he preserved a quantity of fruit for me, but s for asking legal advice, never. We were very good friends, but our relations were on a social basis entirely. I lent him $90 once and he afterward paid back $45. I did not know until months afterward that he had considered that he had acted as my attorney."

Mrs. McLaughlin admitted that the bond between them at one time was deeper than any that could be woven by lawyer or chef, but something broke it off, and Judge Arnot shut off questioning on that point.

An obscure point was elucidated when Ira S. Lillick, an attorney of San Francisco, told how attorneys fix their fees. Mr. Lillick said, he would have charged Mrs. McLaughlin $1,000 to $2,000, probably $2,000, as in addition to having the cash, she had social standing, which counted strongly. He testified that one per cent. of the sums involved in transactions of the sort was a good bsis for an actions of the sort was a good basis for an attorney to work on in determining his fee.

Men Who Helped to Make America

General Stephen Watts Kearney.

STEPHEN WATTS KEARNY, American soldier, was born in Newark, N. J., August [illegible] 1794. When he entered the army as a lieutenant the War of 1812 had just begun, and in the first year of his service the young soldier won recognition.

In the battle of Queenstown Heights, in the early and disastrous days of the land fighting, young Kearny distinguished himself. He served throughout the war with distinction.

In [illegible] Kearny had reached the rank of a brigadier general. Then the Mexican war commenced, and [illegible] the [illegible] who help[illegible] on [illegible] General Kearny became a leading spirit.

In an expedition which set out from Leavenworth in June, 1846, General Kearny entered Santa Fe and gained possession of the whole of New Mexico without opposition. After organizing a government, he left the main body of his army under Colonel Doniphan and crossed the continent to California.

Kearny then bore his part in the battle of San Pascual in December, 1846. From the time of this battle is dated his commission as brevet [illegible] general, in recognition of his services in the campaign.

General Kearny was the Governor of California from March to June, 1847. He then joined the army in Mexico and continued in the field. He died in St. Louis, October 31, 1848.

ANNUAL MEET IS HELD HERE

Sessions of Fort Wayne Association Churches and Pastors.

AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH

The Fort Wayne Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers will begin the sessions of its two days' annual meeting Tuesday evening at the Plymouth Congregational church. The meeting will bring here the ministers of the denomination from the churches in this part of the state and also a number of lay delegates. The purpose of the session is to discuss matters of interest to the church.

Rev. L. Curtis Talmage of Terre Haute, is the state moderator and will preside during the sessions. He will preach the opening sermon Tuesday evening at the church. This will be followed by the administration of the Lord's supper by the Revs. E. W. Gray and John Humfreys. The program for the Wednesday session is as follows:

10:00 a. m.—Devotions led by Rev. John Humfreys.
10:15 a. m.—Organization.
Reading of minutes and registrar's reports.
Business: Election of registrar for three years; ministers' requests for letters of removal; appointment of committees.
10:45 a. m.—Reports from the churches.
11:00 a. m.—Address by Rev. W. G. Puddefoot, "The Work in the State."
1:45 p. m.—Devotion led by Rev. E. W. Gray.
2:00 p. m.—Business.
2:30 p. m.—Address by Rev. L. Curtis Talmage, "The Home and the Church; Safe-Guarding the Family."
Discussion.
3:30 p. m.—Address by Rev. John B. Ferguson, "The Greatest Factor in Christian Education."

The closing session will be held Wednesday evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock, at which time Rev. W. G. Puddefoot, representing the Home Missionary society, will deliver the address. Dr. Puddefoot is one of the able ministers of the denomination and a most interesting speaker.

ORGANIZE NEW SOCIETY.

Antoinette Court of Women's Order of Foresters Instituted.

Twenty-nine women of St. Mary's parish have allied themselves with the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters and Antoinette court, No. 870, was instituted last evening at a meeting held in St. Mary's school hall. Mrs. Rose D. Rittman, of Chicago, high chief ranger of the order, did the official work. The first meeting of the new organization will be held this evening, officers will be elected and installation will take place. Mrs. Rittman was the guest of Mrs. Joseph Zurbuch last evening after the meeting. The women who are to form the charter members of the order are Mrs. John McArdle, Mrs. Thomas McKiernan, Mrs. Frank Federspiel, Mrs. Joseph Zurbuch, Mrs. Edward Ehrman, Mrs. Bernard Schele, Mrs. Martin Reinhard, Mrs. Herman Kappel, Mrs. Leo Schirmeyer, Mrs. Clem App, Mrs. Martin App, Mrs. Albert Alter, Mrs. George Meyer and the Misses Leonora and Theresa Kahlbacher, Loretta Aukenbruck, Laura Kramer, Elenore Reinhard, Estella Root, Mary May, Annie Rayer, Rosella and Katherine Brown, Grace Barnett. Dr. John McArdle has been appointed medical examiner for this city.

REV. H. W. BENNETT, D. D.,

Will Temporarily Occupy the Pulpit at Wayne Street Church.

During the absence of Rev. C. Claude Travis, the pastor of the Wayne Street M. E. church, in Europe, which will be for a period of a few months commencing early in April, his pulpit will be occupied Sundays, morning and evening, by Rev. Henry W. Bennett, D. D., of Warsaw, formerly pastor of the congregation.

After leaving here Dr. Bennett was selected by the board of bishops as the superintendent of the Goshen district and at the expiration of his year's service as such was placed on the retired minister's list and since then has been making his home in Warsaw. He is a most interesting and forcible pulpit orator. Rev. Chauncey King, also a retired Methodist minister, of this city, will have charge of the pastoral work of Rev. Travis during his absence.

LECTURE TO SODALITIES

Delivered Tomorrow Evening by Charles M. Niezer.

The Married Men's and Young Men's sodalities of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception will give the second of a series of lectures arranged by these societies in the assembly rooms of Library hall on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. It is open to all the members of the Cathedral parish and their friends and all are cordially invited to attend. The speaker will be Charles M. Niezer. His subject will be "The Fundamentals of Socialism." The Married Men's and Young Men's sodalities are composed of earnest and energetic officers and members and both societies are in a flourishing condition both spiritually and financially. They have experienced one of the most successful years in their histories. Fathers Quinlan and McCarthy have charge of these societies.

A NEW SCHOOL HALL.

St. Paul Lutheran Congregation to Build New Edifice.

On the site of the old building at the corner of Barr and Madison streets will in the near future stand a new school building, replacing the present inconvenient and unsuitable structure, used for the schools of the St. Paul Lutheran congregation. The pastor of the congregation, Rev. J. W. Miller, announced at the services Sunday that the building committee has been appointed and they will at once begin arrangements for the building of the structure. The plans and cost of the building have not yet been decided on. The sum of $19,925 has already been pledged for the building. A campaign for raising an additional sum has been inaugurated.

RAISES CHURCH DEBT.

West Creighton Avenue Congregation Pledges Desired Amount.

Fully appreciating the hindrance to growth in having a big debt facing them all the time, the congregation of the West Creighton Avenue Church of Christ determined to raise their $2,500 indebtedness. At the morning service yesterday pledge cards were signed to raise the needed amount in the coming twelve months and the entire sum of $2,500 was subscribed to be paid in five installments, beginning on March 24 and continuing to April 1, 1913. The pastor of the church, Rev. J. H. McCartney, and the congregation were highly gratified at the result. The payments of the pledges are distributed in such a manner that they will not become a burden.

Society Meetings.

The Women's Missionary society of Bethel Evangelical church will meet tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. C. A. Augspurger, 2033 South Calhoun street.

The East Side division of the Ladies' Aid society of the First M. E. church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Miss Emma Gerkins, 512 Montgomery street. Members have the privilege of inviting their friends.

Mrs. H. H. Spiller went to Columbia City today to attend an executive board meeting of the State Missionary society of the Church of God. The purpose of the meeting was to make arrangements for the state meeting which will be held in Auburn on May 2 and 3.

The Home Missionary society of St. Paul's Lutheran church will meet Wednesday afternoon in the school hall with Mrs. A. Oelke as the hostess.

Reception to Pastor.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will give a reception for Rev. and Mrs. J. K. Cecil and son, Robert, in the social rooms of the church Tuesday evening from 8 to 10:30. All the young people of the church are invited. The young people take this way of expressing their appreciation of the splendid work done by Rev. and Mrs. Cecil during the past year.

Simpson Church Meeting.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Simpson Epworth league will be held at the church, corner South Harrison and West Suttenfield streets, on Tuesday evening, March 12. All members are especially urged to come as the annual election of officers will take place.

Miss Amy K. Williams is the first woman to be elected president of the London Teachers' association. Miss Williams is head mistress of the Broadwater road school, Tooting, London. After serving five years as a student teacher she became a teacher's assistant, from which place she was promoted in 1901 to head mistress. Last year she was elected head of the National Union of Teachers and served on four of the union sub-committees. She is the treasurer of the Women Teachers' union and is a declared opponent to the system of large classes.

TAPPED 8 TIMES

The following report in an extreme case of chronic Bright's Disease will interest physicians due to the fact that tapping has heretofore nearly invariably attended fatal terminations.

Patient—six years old—the young son of A. C. Dean, of 1726 Ninth Ave., Oakland, Cal.

Chronic Bright's. Dropsy that had resisted all efforts was continually increasing. The family physician gave no hope and said the end was near.

At this critical moment the treatment was changed to Fulton's Renal Compound, the physician aiding it by holding up the heart and strengthening the little patient against collapse.

Case very stubborn—dropsy was so oppressive that the patient had to be tapped eight times. But as the tappings became further apart the albumen began to decline, diuresis increased, and the patient made a slow but steady recovery, and is now going to the public school in Oakland at last advices.

D. & N. Pharmacy is local agent for Fulton's Renal Compound. Ask for pamphlet. We desire to hear from and advise with patients not improving the third week. Literature mailed free. John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco, Cal.

PLEDGE PLAN TO PAY FOR CHURCH

Steps Taken by South Side Baptist Congregation for New Building.

NOW RAISING FUNDS

The South Side Baptist church, corner of Indiana and Cottage avenues, is one of the youngest organizations of its kind in the city, yet it bids fair to occupy a place in the front rank of religious activities. The final step in the organization of this church was taken Sept. 12, 1911, when a council of delegates from neighboring churches voted to "recognize" this new organization as an independent Baptist church. Its charter membership numbered about seventy, many of whom had been members of the First Baptist church. Several of the present officers have served the mother church in the same capacity in which they now serve the young church and so are especially well qualified for their duties. This together with the fact that the location is an exceptionally good one, gives to the work an outlook that is very bright and promising.

Located directly opposite the South Wayne school, midway between the Lutheran hospital and Broadway, in the midst of a very rapidly growing residence section of the city, with no other church organization of any kind for several blocks and only one within a radius of about one-half mile, south side Baptists have an important field in which to serve. They have entered upon their work with zeal and determination, which already has brought things to pass.

For a number of years a Sunday school has been maintained at this place under the direction of the First Baptist church. While the attendance and interest in that work has been good for years, it is now much better because of the support it has from a church on the field. Of late the attendance has steadily increased, frequently exceeding the highest record to date. During the severe weather of the past few months 173 has been the record mark. Two weeks ago, however, the attendance was 187, and yesterday found 194 present. This number is sure to be largely increased as the spring and summer months come on.

A B. Y. P. U. was organized a few months ago with some 18 or 20 members, but now has a membership of 40. In addition to the Ladies' Aid society, which is in a flourishing condition, a Woman's Missionary society is now doing a splendid work. The church membership has already passed the 90 mark, with clear indications of a further rise in the near future.

The greatest present need of this six-months-old church is that of a new building with sufficient room to care for its rapidly growing work. An audience of 125 at a preaching service would tax the seating capacity of the present building, yet in this room the Sunday school must continue to meet till a new building can be erected. To make possible the carrying on of the work at the present time it is necessary to have no less than five classes crowded into the small pace between the pulpit and the front pews. All winter long one of the largest classes has been going out to a near-by home for the lesson study period; at present two classes go elsewhere during that part of the hour, and plans are being made to have four classes outside the building from now till fall, by which time it is hoped new quarters can be made ready for use.

Some important steps have been taken in the direction of securing and paying for a new church building, and that work will go forward as rapidly as possible from now on. To avoid the burden of a large debt it has been decided to adopt a plan of building which would permit the erection of a modern Sunday school annex, sufficiently large to care for all present needs, and to build the auditorium later on, without marring the beauty of the building when completed.

The trustees are seeking to raise sufficient funds to erect and furnish that part of the building, so that if possible, no debt shall be left unprovided for from the beginning. They are now receiving pledges to be paid in four annual, or eight semi-annual payments, and already have half, or more than half the estimated cost provided for. It is hoped they may be able to make full provision for this urgent need within the next few days, so as to have everything in readiness for the workmen at the earliest possible date.

PATTERSON - FLETCHER COMPANY

ENGINEER IS ON THE PARK PLANS

Board Will Adopt Resolution for Lakeside in Few Days.

BRIDGE FIRST THING

Engineer Mariotte Price, of the city park board, commenced today work on his plans for the improvement of Lakeside park and in the course of a few days the park board will adopt resolutions for the improvements that are contemplated and an active campaign will be commenced.

The general plans for the park have been in the hands of the board for some time and the new ones will embrace a bridge at Lake avenue to divide the lakes into two sections. The old boat factory, bought for $2,800 some time ago, will be razed and just as soon as the legal details are complied with the actual work will begin.

For the present Columbia avenue will remain as it is. In the course of a short time it will be necessary for the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company to extend its tracks and until that time little will be done for the thoroughfare as it will have to be widened when this is done and a new bridge will also be necessary. The bridge at Lake avenue will be of concrete construction and highly ornamental.

Col. D. N. Foster and Prof. Louis Dorn, of the board, explained to the citizens who gathered in the Lakeside school the plan for paying for the improvements and estimated that an assessment of $7.50 for each lot in the park district will be sufficient to pay for the work.

Those who were in attendance voted unanimously for the assessment, which will be levied in the same manner as those for other public work. There will be opportunity given for hearings on remonstrances before the resolutions are finally adopted.

It was explained that the question was up to the residents of the district. That there has already been an expenditure of more than $10,000 by appropriation was shown and it was stated the board of public works would probably not set aside any more money for the purpose.

H. F. Bullerman secured the passage of a resolution asking the board of county commissioners to change the name of the proposed new bridge across the Maumee river from Coombs street to Tecumseh street bridge. Mr. Bullerman, W. H. LaTourrette and William Clutter were appointed on the committee from Lakeside, and Professor Dorn, president of the East Side Civic Improvement association, instructed the bridge committee from that district to act.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"THE ROUND UP" THIS WEEK.

The Tremendous Dramatic Sensation Coming for Two Days.

Klaw and Erlanger's production of "The Round-Up" will be seen at the Majestic theater on Friday and Saturday and Saturday matinee. This powerful spectacular melodrama of life in southwestern Arizona when General Crook was chasing Conchise, the famous Apache marauder, and his band of truant redskins back to their reservation, has made a most remarkable appeal to theatergoers. It touches with singular force the romantic spirit of inherent in everyone. Its story is true to the heart and to nature. Its characters are striking, well drawn and cleverly contrasted, and the entire performance teems with fascinating dash and spirit from start to finish. It is so real, in the personalities who tell the story, its Indians, cowboys, scouts and cavalrymen, its bucking bronchos and its thrilling battle spectacle, that one is translated to the locale of the scenes and for the time becomes actually a participant in these stirring events in the great southwest. The sense of witnessing stage mimicry seems entirely lost in the auditor of "The Round-Up." This is the secret of the really marvelous success of the play.

MR. EGGEMAN RECOVERING AND WILL SOON MANAGE JUDGESHIP CAMPAIGN

Within a few days Attorney John W. Eggeman expects to be released from the hospital and will then take personal charge of his campaign for the Allen county circuit judgeship, which was interrupted by an attack of appendicitis and a consequent operation a few weeks ago. His condition has been very serious, but he is now well "out of the woods" and making rapid progress toward complete recovery. Friends who have called upon him recently—and there was a host of them Sunday—express great pleasure at finding him gaining so rapidly and so surely and they are ready to welcome him back to his activities among them. To friends who called upon him yesterday in St. Joseph's hospital Mr. Eggeman said: "It has been a hard pull for me during the past two weeks, but I am now regaining my strength and just as soon as the doctors and nurses will consent to let me go I shall try to make up for lost time. It has been a sore disappointment that I could not get around personally to see my friends, one and all, but these are circumstances not of my making. It has been a source of intense gratification to me to receive here in my room so many assurances of devotion and loyalty and I shall find no little pleasure in tendering in person my thanks to all such."

Time to regain his strength is what Mr. Eggeman now needs and at his present rate of progress will be on his feet within a week or two and will then throw himself into the circuit judgeship fight with the energy so characteristic of him in all that he does.

FARM HANDS CAN GET GOOD WAGES

Applications for Help Received at Employment Office.

NONE FOR THE PLACES

Men who want to go back to the simple life where they will be expected to milk the cows, till the soil and do the dozen other things required on farms can find plenty of employment at pay ranging from $20 to $30 a month with board and washing included.

Chief Louis Schroeder and John Wessel, Jr., his assistant, have been busy all day trying to get good farm hands for people living in Allen county to say nothing of applications for help of this character from farmers living near Bippus, Huntington, Andrews, Churubusco and even as far away as Franklin county, which is south of Indianapolis.

Few men want this kind of work and most of the applicants for places had rather loaf around the corridors of the court house and soak up the county's heat.

Of the list of persons whose applications are on file in the local office of the Indiana Employment bureau there are not more than four who want to go to the farms although the pay offered is attractive enough and will net the ordinary laborer more than he can make at other occupations.

ANOTHER WOMAN IN GRACE CASE?

Wife Accused of Shooting Husband in Atlanta Thinks So.

GIVES HER REASONS

Atlanta, Ga., March 11.—"Another woman" theory was injected into the Eugene Grace shooting mystery today by statements attributed to Mrs. Grace, who is held accused of wounding her husband. While she gave no names, she let it be known she considered she might have had a rival for the young builder's affections. Mrs. Grace, formerly Mrs. Obie, of Philadelphia, denied the authorship of two letters said to have been sent to her at Newnan, Ga., and purporting to have come from her husband in which he said his contemplated trip to Philadelphia had been abandoned and that a "friend" would spend the night with him while Mrs. Grace was with his parents in the Georgia town.

"If I knew who wrote those letters I would know who shot my husband," declared Mrs. Grace today.

INTERPRETER TO TELL THE COURT

Judge Mungovan Has Hard Task Before Him on Thursday.

RUSSIANS IN BATTLE

When Judge Frank Mungovan gets Stainslaw Woehick, Witol Tomassowsky, Sylvester Szythic, John Naslin and Mike Falba before him Thursday to settle a little mix-up in which two of the men were wounded, he will need an interpreter and need him badly, as all of these fellows insist on talking at once in a language that his honor hasn't mastered in his six years of city court service.

Each of the men was put under a bond of $50 to appear for trial and William Roeback, who is accused of having cut one of the foreigners, was held under $100. As far as the officers could ascertain the difficulty occurred in the settlement of a board bill, but that is as far as they got, because they could not understand the foreigners, who are all Russians.

The Other Cases.

William Wier, who is hustling "Neversweat" Lee for a jail record, was drunk and got a chance to add fifteen days to his mark. George Stanton, who is running a close second, drew twenty days.

Charles R. Orcutt was held to sober him up. He is in bad shape from the effects of a debauch and he was held over ten days. Ed Kelly got $1 and costs and John Cummings drew $5. George Eiter consented to stay at the poor farm and was released.

Paul Vinson and Charles Morris, loiterers, and Mike Dunn, a vag, were allowed to go.

The committees of the Patriotic association, viz.: G. A. R., U. V. L., W. R. C., Ladies of G. A. R., Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans, etc., will hold their next committee meeting Tuesday evening, March 12th, at 7:30 o'clock in the assembly room. Important business will be transacted at that time and the full committee is urgently requested to be present at that time; also the members of their organizations are asked to be present.

ASKED MURPHY TO THROW THE FIGHT

Charge Made That Abe Attell Sought to Get by on a Fake.

ATTELL DENIES IT

San Francisco, March 11.—The Call today prints an account of an alleged proposal for a "fake" knockout, said to have been made by Abe Attel to "Harlem Tommy" Murphy last Saturday before their 20 round fight. Attell denies the accusation and says he made no proposition to Murphy or his manager.

According to James Buckley, Murphy's manager, as he is quoted in the Call, the first suggestion as to "fixing" the fight was made by Attel Feb. 26. He was not told positively that no agreement would be made it is alleged. "Another meeting was arranged," said the newspaper account, and this time Murphy accompanied his manager. Murphy was asked if he would agree to fall to the mat after receiving a certain blow and pretend to be unable to rise. He said he refused.

"Last Wednesday or Thursday night, in response to a telephone message, Buckley met Attel and again listened to the fighter's proposal.

"Attell approached Buckley again just before the men went into the ring. Buckley was called from Murphy's dressing room by Attel and asked if the Harlem boy was ready to play the part Attell wished to assign to him. Buckley says that even then he did not give a definite answer and that at no time had Attel received a definite reply."

Murphy with Buckley left early today for the east to prepare for his fight with Packey McFarland at Kenosha, Wis.

Promoter James Coffroth announced yesterday he had secured Eddie McGoorty to meet the winner of the Dillon-Klause fight to be held here March 25.

FISHING BOATS MISSING.

San Diego, Cal., March 11.—Six vessels of San Diego's fishing fleet with their crews, numbering nineteen men, are missing today. No word has been received from them since they put to sea early Saturday morning. The forty-mile-an-hour gale which swept the coast Saturday is believed to have scattered the fleet.

CONSIDER CHILDREN'S TASTES.

In Furnishing the Nursery Don't Use Wornout Things.

Why is it that harmony and taste seem to be the last things thought of in fitting up a room for children? Any worn chair, desk or rug that has become too shabby for any other room seems to be "good enough for the nursery." So ture is this of most homes that the regular type of nursery resembles a third rate auction room more than the surroundings of healthy, wholesome childhood.

Comfort and health should be assured first of all. After this is accomplished some scheme of decoration, which will prove of interest to the child should be worked out.

For instance, in one home the little daughter of eight was much interested in drawing and displayed remarkable talent in this direction. The wise mother took her scheme of decoration from this fact. She fitted up her little girl's room with prints by the old masters, books on the lives of great artists, written so that a child could understand them. There was a small easel placed in the room and plenty of charcoal.

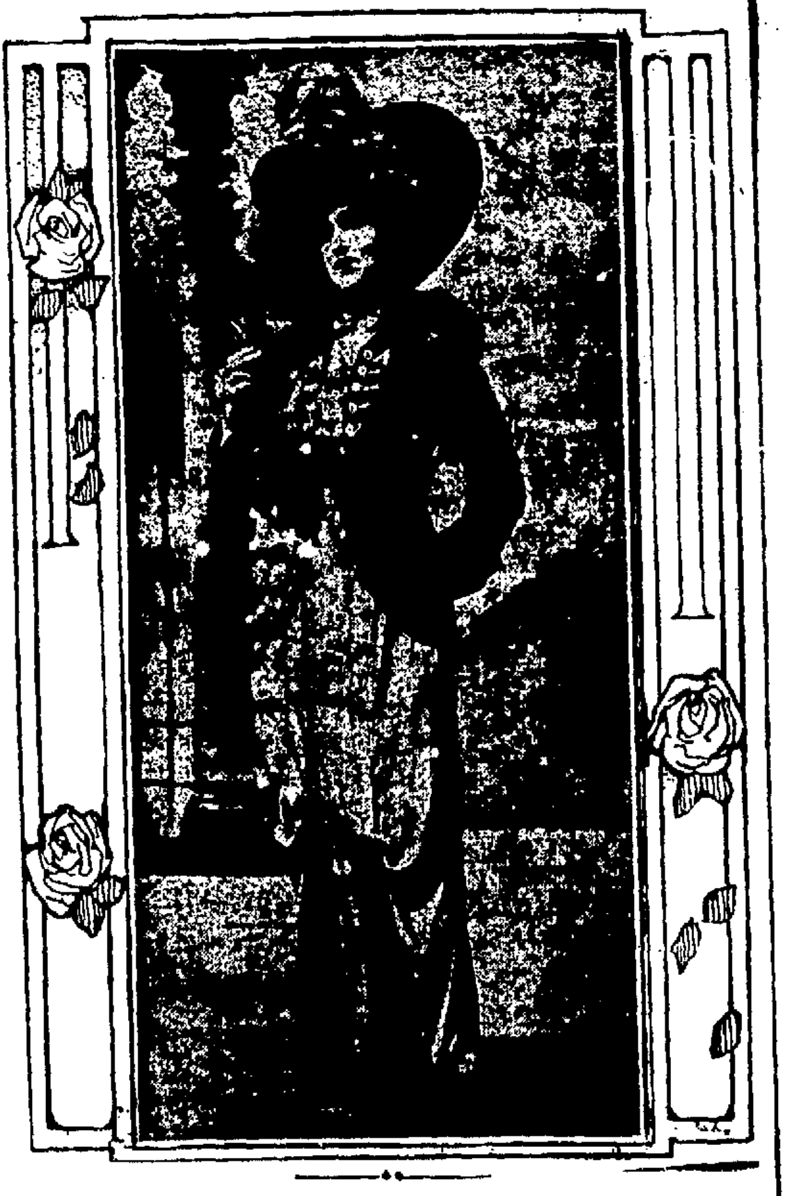
On the walls, above the dainty one-tone papering, was a delightful frieze, which offered many subjects to the child for her drawings.

Another room in another home was furnished for a boy of nine who was much interested in the life and the history of the American Indian. All kinds of trophies, such as the Indian bow and arrow, scalping knife and Indian feathers, real and imitation, made decorations of a most entertaining kind. Burnt feather Indian heads and a Navajo blanket were tacked to the walls, while another Indian blanket served as a rug for the floor. The boy took the greatest delight in the room and was always happy in it.

By studying children's tastes a mother can, in this way, provide rooms that afford entertainment and amusement as well as shelter. There are so many occasions when a child must be confined to his bed, with ills pecular to infancy, that it will prove a great comfort to the little invalid if his room offers some joints of interest. Even if the little one is the healthiest sort of child he will enjoy a room fashioned especially to please his tastes.

MILLINERY OPENING
Wednesday afternoon and evening. Emma Miller, 1304 Calhoun St. 11-2t

IN MILITARY STYLE.



One of the new military coats is illustrated. It is of velvet with a collar of fur and lines of white buttons down the front from small revers of the velvet. The dress is of satin hemmed with fur, and fur runs up the front of the skirt, which is cut with a round panel.

Spring Millinery Shows Some Odd, But Artistic Lines

The Big Hat and the Little Hat Vie for Favor—Both Adorned with Novel Trimmings.

Women are able to get a view of advanced spring millinery even at this early date, for all the shops are showing straws in great profusion. The big hat and the little hat, the toque and the cap, are making a bid side by side for feminine favor.

Among the small designs there are some of the quaintest shapes imaginable with dainty little trimmings, while the picture hats represent the last word in smartness with their waving plumes and boldly turned up brims.

The novelty of the season in picture hats is a two sided model. Made in black pedal straw on one side and soft French blue silk on the other, the hat is trimmed with a plumage mournt which stands up from the center of the dome shaped crown. The large brim, in graceful line slightly drooping all the way round, has a two sided lining to match the top of the hat.

Nearly all the large models are in black straw, with black or white feathers, but there is a new wine shade which is very artistic. In one hat of this coloring, made in four corner style slightly rolled back, the willow plumes which form the trimming are in exactly the same shade as the straw. An old color which has been revived for the spring is putty, a hat in this tone being trimmed with ostrich plumes.

Among the new trimmings for the picture hat of black coloring there is a snow white ostrich feather ruching applied to the hat as a brim lining. To complete the model which illustrates this fashion, there is a Prince of Wales' feather effect up the front of the hat. The brim is arranged in tam-o'-shanter effect, turned boldly up from the side.

Ostrich plumes have taken on great length of late. Yards of these feathers are used on some of the large hats, swathing and wreathing the wide brims on the edges under the straw, and again appearing on the top, soaring high above the head.

Millinery opening Thursday, March 14, afternoon and evening. A cordial invitation to all.

BEAUTY OF THE EYEBROWS.

The entire expression of the face depends upon so slight a thing as the curve of an eyebrow.

Do the eyebrows close in tightly over the bridge of the nose? That is the reason for a forbidding, a heavy, even a repellant expression.

Do they form a peak over the eyes? That is why their owner holds the look of a satyr.

Are they uneven, straggly, growing regardless of graceful curve or straight line? If so, they convey an unkempt, indefinite appearance, no matter how careful one may be in the details of the toilet.

There is a delicacy about carefully kept eyebrows that at once bespeaks the thoroughbred, the woman of fine tastes and finer fibre. They belong to the beauty features that none but the woman of infinite care would remember. And yet those who have discovered the value, the marvelous change that a pair of arched brows can effect, wonder how they can be so generally overlooked.

It is a ludicrous mistake to pencil or color the brows into a shade that contrasts violently with the hair. Such deceptions are always blatantly evident. A slightly darker shade, just enough to accentuate the arch, is permissible. Always arrange the brows and lashes with a soft brush after the face is cleansed or powdered. This is one of Nature's most valuable beauty secrets.

"Puritan" Flour best for Bread and Pastry.

SYMPATHIZE WITH THE CHILD.

Never laugh at your little one's confidences. Sympathize with his plans, no matter how wild they may seem. If you think his imagination is carrying him too far, administer a slight check by asking if such and such a plan seems the best thing to do.

It is to a gentle mother of this kind that the son will carry his hopes and fears when he is a man full grown.

Few mothers consider the real importance of having their children's perfect confidence when they are young. It means to them that they can feel perfect trust in their sons and daughters when they are grown. It means that the mother need not worry about where Tom is if he is absent from the home for a few hours, because he will tell her all about it tomorrow.

The fact that a boy knows that his mother expects his confidence and that she places her trust in him will be his surest incentive toward an upright, honorable manhood.

No Place for a Washington.

Dr. R. J. Campbell, the English Christian-Socialist, was condemning, at a luncheon in Philadelphia, a certain type of modern business man.

"This type of man," he said, "is precisely opposite to George Washington. Washington got on by telling the truth. This man gets on by lying.

"It reminds me of a story.

"A very successful business man took his son into his employ, and the youth, after a few days' work, entered his father's office and said disconsolately:

"'Dad, I'm afraid I shan't make good here. You see, I'm not used to lying.'

"But the father laughed easily.

"'Oh,' he said, 'if you tell the truth in a place like this, everybody'll believe you're lying, anyway.'"

Telephones and Ear Troubles.

The ear troubles of telephone users are attributed by Dr. Foster of Charlottenburg to the sharp crackling and other intermittent distracting noises, and not to any electrical or electromagnetic action. The elimination of these sounds is a problem for the telephone engineer. Herr Bahr of Charlottenburg has attempted a solution, and claims improvement by substituting for the iron diaphragm one of mica attached to an iron disc.

When boiling sear each side quickly, then lift a little from the blaze that it may cook more slowly.

Bearnaise Sauce.

Simmer slowly together one-half of a cupful each of tarragon vinegar and Rhine or any white wine, one tablespoonful of peppercorns, a dash of cayenne and two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped onion. When the liquid has almost evaporated lift off until partly cooled, then stir in two slightly beaten egg yolks. Stand over hot water and stir slowly, but steadily; as the sauce beats drop in bits of butter, using three tablespoonfuls altogether. Lift occasionally that it may not thicken too fast. When very thick strain into a hot bowl. This sauce is equally good cold.

We have spared neither time, labor nor expense to make this season' the greatest in our history. A visit to our store will convince you that nowhere in the city can this matchless display of Spring and Summer Millinery be duplicated. You are cordially invited.

Ants Eat Through Lead Cables.

White ants are causing much trouble in South Australia in telephone cables and also in the underground electric light lines. On the lead sheathed telephone cables crosses between the circuits began to occur. Upon withdrawing some of this cable from the ducts it was found that the ants had eaten through the lead in many places. On the Sidney system of electric lighting the ants ate through the bitumen compound and then through the lead and high tension insulation next to the wire. To stop the ravages which will incur an enormous expense if not checked, arsenious oxide mixed with bitumen, a sort of pitch, is being applied to the cables. Carbon bisulphide is also being tried with the idea that the odor will drive the ants away.

Just Occurred to Him.

"It never struck me before," said Mr. Wimpleton, "but Dr. Temple stopped me this morning to tell me what a big, handsome, manly-looking fellow our son had grown to be."

"I don't see how you could help noticing it," his wife replied. "I have been aware of it all the time; but I guess a mother is more likely to look for such things than a father is."

"Oh, I've realized that Will was handsome and manly-looking, all right. You never have been any more proud of him than I have been."

"But you just said it never had struck you before."

"I mean it never struck me before how much he resembles me."

SPRING MILLINERY OPENING

Tuesday and Wednesday, March 12 and 13

It will be a showing which will eclipse even our own best efforts of former years—styles were never so diversified, models so beautiful, or values so attractive.

This first complete showing of the new season's best creations comprises

Exquisite Pattern Hats
Exclusive Tailored Hats
Famous Knox Sailors

The best efforts of foremost millinery experts at home and abroad are represented here—some are very expensive originals, while others are none the less charming but much less costly adaptations reproduced in our own work rooms.

In the children's department we have some pleasant surprises for mothers of little tots, for whom we have assembled an unusually fine and complete collection of latest juvenile millinery.

This Spring Opening, as a whole, presents all that is new and worth while in spring styles, comprising latest shapes, materials, colors and trimming effects. It is worthy of your attendance and careful inspection. Come.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS MUST SOLVE IT

Only in Education Can the Problem of Disease be Combatted.

STRANGE CASE CITED

Indianapolis, Ind., March 11.—"We will have to look to the public schools and the rising generation to solve the great problem of disease prevention in Indiana. Education and the willingness to be educated are essential," said Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, today as he tossed across his table a letter from the secretary of Associated Charities in one of the larger cities of the state.

"Read that. It reflects a condition we have to confront in many localities," Dr. Hurty continued.

The letter follows:

"John Smith is about 30 years old. Last March he developed tuberculosis. He was urged to have his sputum examined, sleep in a well ventilated room by himself and go to the state hospital if he could be admitted. He did none of these things. His wife had had fever for about five weeks. She has a cough and looks worse than her husband. The baby was born February 24, 1911, and has never been strong. It is still nursing. The oldest child is twelve years and has needed an operation for about one year. The mastoid process needs scraping. We can arrange for the operation, but the parents will not permit it. The other four children seem fairly well. The family had absolutely nothing. A small lodge helped them some and the township trustee helps. The charity organization has helped some. The man works only a little and the wife takes in washing. I have talked to her about going to the state sanitarium and she will not consider it. It would require at least $8 a week to keep the family even poorly. Soon all the children will be infected, which will make matters worse. The people are ignorant, careless and afraid. However, they are not afraid of taking tuberculosis. The husband says he has stomach trouble and has only contempt for the physician who told him he was tubercular. What can you tell me to do in such a case?"

Dr. Hurty will answer there is no way to compel a man to be cured, but the courts may be appealed to to protect children.

You Never Tire of Playing The Tel-Electric Piano Player Because It Never Tires You

You don't have to pump it. You control the expression devices with your HANDS, your FEET have nothing to do.

When you play the Tel-Electric you realize the pleasure of PERSONALLY PRODUCING MUSIC. It enables you to put your own personality into the music, although if you wish it will play without your assistance with the technique of a finished pianist. It does not obstruct the key board. With the Tel-Electric attached to your piano you have both a piano and a player piano.

Don't sacrifice your piano for a small allowance on a player piano. By attaching a Tel-Electric you will save money and secure the most artistic and altogether satisfactory player in the world, and it costs no more than the old style foot-pumped pneumatic player.

MUST NOT BECOME A FLAT-WHEELER

"Cop" Has to Take Better Care of His Feet Than a Toe-Dancer.

HE'S CAREFUL OF 'EM

Indianapolis, March 11.—In the case of the comedians, cartoonists and wags versus the policeman's foot, the defense will now have an inning. The populace has heard the policeman's peral extremity mercilessly maligned, jocularly joshed and superciliously slandered since time immemorial. Doubtless the Roman centurian turtled down into his toga, or whatever it was he wore, when he rounded the corner and found the high school girl giggling at his sandaled feet caricatured in the funny book, and then smote roundly his shield with his great toe, ere he bit off a slice of the brown plug. Yea, up through the ages, humor has shadowed the policeman and camped especially in his footsteps.

The reason for it all is that many policemen, after they have trod a beat for many years, have feet that look like hams encased in leather. This is all because they have bought shoes that feel perfectly comfortable. Each time they purchase shoes they get half a size larger until they come to the limit in sizes, and then many of them then begin to have their shoes made to order.

If any one thinks there is anything humorous about a policeman's feet let him talk to a policeman. See if he thinks his feet are funny. Nix. The policeman takes his feet seriously. He looks upon them as a big part of his stock in trade, for a policeman with bad feet is like a wagon with no wheels.

Feet Are His Fortune.

When a policeman gets to be a "flat-wheeler," as the policeman with the bad feet is called, he never gets a choice district, and he is doing well if he can stay in the department at all, for bad feet are poor things to be attached to a man hiking a district all night. The "flat-wheelers" in the department are numerous.

There are men who are on the pension list because their feet "went bad."

No toe dancer takes better care of her feet than the average policeman. When a man begins the business he learns early in the game that his feet are to be looked after.

When a policeman feels his feet "going bad" it is a sort of terror for him. He realizes it may mean weeks at home, losing his pay, and then in the end he may be put on a pension that is not equal to half of his salary. To a young man able to walk a district the pension fund has no charms.

They Wear Custom Shoes.

Policemen as a body of men buy a better grade of shoes than any other class of men in equal circumstances. It is common among them to pay $6 and $7 for shoes. The average policeman pays $5 and a large number have their shoes custom made. Almost every old-fashioned neighborhood shoemaker who can do something besides putting on soles and heels has a customer or two who are members of the police department. But most of the bluecoats have their measure taken at the shoe stores that represent factories.

Superintendent of Police Hyland has had his shoes made by hand for years. Before he became a ranking officer he wore custom shoes. Lieut. John Corrigan during the winter months wears leather boots. Lieutenant of Detectives Jerry Kinney, for a big man, has a most dainty foot. He would never be mistaken for a policeman judging from his brogans. Capt. Coffin, contrary to all police rules, wears the conventional button shoes. He did not run a district long enough for his feet to get to the regular police proportions.

Patrolman Clifford Richter has short feet with a high arched instep that is being watched by Police Surgeon Ira Dunlavey without Richter knowing it. Richter is a big man, weighing 220 pounds, and Dr. Dunlavey knows it will only be a course of time until Richter will be a flat-wheeler unless he puts braces in his shoes. Traffic Lieut. Leet wears shoes with low heels. Deck Sergt. Belch has a long slender foot for as large a man as he is.

Dr. Dunlavey's Difficulties.

Dr. Dunlavey says he has considerable trouble with the feet of the police department.

"A policeman's feet are a source of annoyance all the time," said Dr. Dunlavey. "They are a most serious problem. They are not so much troubled with corns and bunions as the average man because they keep their feet in good condition.

"The trouble I have with policemen's feet is with the breaking down of the insteps. There is only one remedy for this. That is to have a plaster cast taken of the foot and then a metal brace made to fit in the shoe and throw the bones of the foot back in place. This is the reason that high arched shoes with high heels are not practical for police wear.

"The average policeman is large, and being on his feet the greater part of the time is a steady strain on the arch of his foot unless it is braced from the under side."

Policemen believe the method of keeping the feet in good conidtion is to change shoes often. Many of them when on day duty change shoes at noon. Thus they put on the same shoes in the morning they had on the night before, and each pair of shoes works half a day and is off half a day.

FOR SICK HEADACHE, SOUR STOMACH, LAZY LIVER OR SLUGGISH BOWELS

Turn the rascals out—the headache, the biliousness, the indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight and keep them out wih Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse and regular your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. That is the only true test. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by all dealers.

Will Beck, of Holten, says the Kansas City Journal, has discovered the model citizen. It is Henry Haag, a farmer, who apologized for letting his subscription to the Recorder fall six months in arrears, and then paid two and one-half years in advance with real money.

MISERABLE STOMACH TROUBLE ENDED, NO BILIOUSNESS OR HEADACHES

Do you feel bright and fresh—as you should feel—when you get up in the morning, do you feel like you have had a good night's rest and like doing a full day's work, or, do you get up all "down and out" and just as tired and sleepy as when you went to bed?

If you do feel tired and all run down, go to your druggist now and get a bottle of Cooper's New Discovery. Take three doses—one before each meal—and if you don't feel better than you have for many a day go back and get your money.

After taking a few doses of this medicine there will be no dyspepsia and you will not feel the effects of undigested food in the stomach which causes you to have heartburn, sick headache, or dizziness and your food will not ferment and cause the bad odor to your breath. The bad taste in your mouth will leave you and you will feel so much improved that your condition will surprise yourself.

Cooper's New Discovery will take the gas from your stomach and cleanse the intestines, and besides, will prepare the food for assimilation into the blood, the same as a sound, healthy stomach should.

You will feel better as soon as you begin taking this medicine. Don't put it off. Remember, if you do not feel better after three doses, go back and secure your money. After using a full bottle of Cooper's New Discovery you will hardly know yourself. Sold by Dreier Drug Co.

HOLDING THE TOP IN BIG TOURNAMENT

SCORE HAS BEEN BEATEN 4 TIMES

Germanias Will Get Some Money But May Not Hold First Place.

MADE GREAT SHOWING

By CHAS. H. SPALDING.

No score as low as the 2,845 registered by the Germanias at the American Bowling congress in Chicago has won first place during the last four years, but last year a score of 2,821, registered by the Brucks II, of Chicago, picked off second money.

The Germania score has yet to withstand the attack of 378 five-man squads before it will be known just how much money it is worth, but in any event it is a dead certainty that it will get the bowlers some cash unless all records are broken. The last of the teams will bowl Friday, March 21.

Last year first place went to the Flanners, of Chicago, with 2,921, the year before to the Cosmos of Chicago with 2,880, in 1909 to the Chicago Lipmans with 2,962 and in 1908 the Bonds of Columbus, O., counted first with 2,927.

No matter what becomes of the score in the tournament it has been the biggest bowling advertisement Fort Wayne has ever had, as no club has ever been in first place before at any time during any tournament, and the fact that the Germanias went into first place was flashed all over the country.

The club won strictly on its merits, as it has been bowling up to a high standard all the season and every man on the club is a good, steady performer. As the games progressed Saturday night and the big crowd of Fort Wayne people at the stockyard alleys became aware of the fact that the Germanias were threatening the leaders the club was cheered to the echo and other spectators took it up and there was a tremendous burst of applause as the men finished with the top score.

Splits beat Fort Wayne out of first place in the doubles. Eddie Harkenrider and Frank Farnan went through their three games without a miss, but each of them had four splits. Farnan's hook ball worked badly for him in the last game and, although he got into the head pin every time he had a tough luck game. Three of Harkenrider's splits fell in the second game, but he picked himself up in the third with seven strikes. Farnan had two splits in the final game.

Chester Schiefer topped the bowlers in the singles. He got away with 190 and ran 225 in his second game and doubled in his third, beating Fred Reynolds out for first place among the local bowlers.

Harkenrider and Farnan will get inside the money in the doubles. Last year a total of 1,172 was worth $43.25 and 1,170 got $42. If history repeats itself John Kelly and Eddie Hecht will get a small bit of the prize money, enough at least to pay their entry fees. They have a score of 1,104 and 1,103 got in in 1911.

A score of 620 was thirty-fifth in the list of last year and was worth $35. Six thirteen was forty-seventh and won $31.60. Tony Haas made 594, which got $18 in 1911, and 537, the figure tabbed by Frank K. Hills, was worth $32. Figuring on the same basis as last year the Fort Wayne bowlers stand to win over $750.

Notes of the Tourney.

There was a spirit of rivalry between the bowlers of the two divisions. Although all went as Fort Wayne Bowling association teams, six were Brunswick clubs and five were from the Metropolitan. The Metropolitan teams made an average of 2,629 and the Brunswick of 2,407. Three Metropolitan teams got the first three places among the Fort Wayne contingent.

All rivalry was forgotten at the close Every Fort Wayne bowler congratulated the Germania players heartily.

Pete Krill, Howard Van Meter and Deputy Prosecutor Stephen A. Callahan were enthusiastic rooters.

A. E. Trentman and Steve Trentman were out to meet the bowlers and to congratulate them.

Both President Howard and Secretary Langtry, of the A. B. C., are pulling for Fort Wayne.

The Sentinel scores were taken from the official sheets and are correct. The errors incidental to transmission by telegraph have been avoided.

SCHEDULE IS IN BAD ALL ROUND

Owners Are Kicking Up Trouble About the Errors in It.

POWERS MAKES KICK

South Bend, Ind., March 11.—The schedule for 1912 has proven a troublesome proposition around Central league headquarters since the birth of the twelve-club organization, more difficulties having arisen since its adoption than in preparation of the draft submitted by Robert Quinn, of Akron. The latest flaw caused President F. R. Carson to miss a train and may necessitate reprinting the schedules. The league head received word from Paul Powers, of Youngstown, that the Steel City had but eight Sundays. By a careful review of the draft Carson discovered Akron to have ten Sunday dates, and further study showed a transposition of Sabbath games as possible. Having arranged the matter to his own satisfaction, Dr. Carson called Owner Quinn and obtained his consent to a change. The train had left, however, when the atmosphere was cleared, and the league executive was forced to postpone his departure.

Further trouble awaited Dr. Carson in Terre Haute, where Owner A. W. Wagner is desirous of securing a holiday date. Originally the Tots had May 30, but this date was given to another club by request because of certain Memorial day exercises in Terre Haute. The fans objected strenuously to a season without holiday games, and Mr. Wagner now hopes to arrange to secure either a July 1 or Labor day pair of games, and efforts will be made while Carson is in Terre Haute to bring the affair to a happy conclusion.

The Green stockings are practically complete. Pitcher Madden, the pitcher bought from Brooklyn, is in line. Manager Harry Arndt received Madden's contract today. Upon this southpaw rests some responsibility for he is counted upon to make good from the start with the South Bend crew. A new pitching staff is invariably an uncertain proposition, and a flinger backed by Madden's record with the right kind of stuff for Central league batters is regarded in the light of a boon.

The ex-Aurora hurler is expected to deliver, while his work of last year, his draft by Brooklyn, and the testimonials of Joe Claffey and Zeke Ferrias who saw him in action frequently in 1911 mark him as a valuable man.

Madden has been regarded in the light of a holdout, as he expressed his dissatisfaction before March 1. Manager Arndt finally managed to come to an amicable agreement with the Aurora product who is now ready to give the Greens his best at all times.

THREE FROM SOUTH BEND.

Trio of Managers in Central League Live in the Same City.

South Bend, Ind., March 11.—With the advent of "Goat" Anderson into the managerial ranks through his financial interest in the Wheeling club, South Bend is the home of three Central league managers and has some claim on two others. Harry Arndt, manager of the local club, has made his home here since he can remember, while Ed Smith, leader of the Grand Rapids team, also is a South Bend resident. Aggie Grant, at Terre Haute, has a wider acquaintance in South Bend than any place else, while "Shag" Shaughnessy's figure is not unknown to local fans, inasmuch as he played with the Notre Dame 'varsity nine for several years and appeared in a South Bend uniform for a short time following his graduation at Notre Dame.

RAGON READY TO REPORT.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 11.—"I am ready to report and the terms of my contract are perfectly satisfactory," was how Steve Ragon, star shortstop, expressed his stand to the management in a letter received today.

In fairness to Ragon it must be said that he was not a real holdout. He did not sign his contract before March 1, the time limit, for the simple reason that he wanted to convince himself that his ankle, broken last season, was strong enough to permit of his cavorting around on the lot next season. This he has done and, in his letter, remarked that he would be on deck when the bell rang.

MAY GET PAT DONAHUE.

Springfield, O., March 11.—Manager Charles O'Day of the Reapers, arrived today and reported the signing of five more players, as follows: J. Murphy, L. V. Bates, Max Terhune and Bert Fairchilds, pitchers; A. F. Vawters, catcher; Pat Donahue, local catcher, last year with Toledo, may also be signed.

THE GERMANIA BOWLERS.

John Leist is captain for the Germanias and is an engraver for the Fort Wayne Printing company and lives at 319 Dawson street. He is an old bowler and has had big tournament experience.

Fred Schwartz is a printer employed by the Fort Wayne Printing company, and it is his first time under tournament fire. He led his club.

A. W. Sander is known as "Ot" and is employed as cost clerk at the Kerr Murray plant. He has been under fire before.

Will Doehrmann is a Pennsylvania machinist and one of the best bowlers in the city. He has been at tournaments every year for the last five years.

Charley Merz is a plumber and this is the second time before a big audience and he worked steadily.

LEWIS' MOTHER IS DEAD.

Allentown, Pa., March 1.—Jack Lewis, former Wheeling infielder, who was to have reported to the Boston Red Sox, will not join the club until late next week. Mrs. Lewis, mother of the star player, died at their home here.

RAIDY MAY TAKE TEAM.

Zanesville, O., March 11.—It is possible that former Manager Joe Raidy will manage a club in the Michigan State league this season, as overtures for his release have been made. Raidy is the property of the Zanesville club. This was established in a ruling recently made by the national commission.

REPORT APRIL FIRST.

Zanesville, O., March 11.—Manager Kelly has ordered his men to report for training here on April 1. A little over three weeks has been assigned for spring practice.

See one of the prize ads. in Wildwood Builders' contest, page 10.

GAINER TO WORK HIS SORE WRIST

Says He Will Find Out in That Way Whether It Will Be Right.

LOOKS LIKE WINNER

Monroe, La., March 11.—Del Gainer has arrived in Monroe, having come from his home in West Virginia in response to a telegram from Manager Jennings.

The tall first sacker is looking fine, says he has been in the best of health all winter and he expects to show his 1911 spring form when the American league curtain is raised in April.

"My wrist is healing, although it is still slightly stiff," said Gainer. "Specialists have told me that the only thing that would work out the stiffness would be playing. I intend to put it to the test in the training work, and I am confident it will be in proper shape at the beginning of the season."

Gainer now weighs about 180 pounds, and he says he is right in playing form.

No practice this morning and probably not this afternoon. The storm area covers the entire south and reports from different major league training camps indicate that other towns are in idleness.

Intermittent showers throughout yesterday prevented the Tigers from getting onto the field for practice work.

The diamond is almost a bog, but as there is a sand covering a few hours of sunshine will dry up the field.

The Detroit team will remain in Monroe nearly three weeks longer. Manager Jennings is not worried over the present climatic conditions. The Detroit leader would of course much rather have fair weather, but he figures that the lay off will not do the players any harm and that there is ample time remaining for them to regain condition.

MAY PLAY THE SERIES.

Manager of St. Mary's Athletics and Concordia Talk It Over.

Prof. Martin Luecke, president of Concordia college, to whom the question of a championship basketball series between the students of his school and St. Mary's Athletics has been submitted, stated today that the matter will be decided tomorrow.

He spoke favorably of the proposed games and said that he would finally determine the question after a conference tonight with the manager of St. Mary's team. The decision is waited with great interest by a legion of basketball patrons who want to see the games played.

WACKER SEES IT IN RIGHT LIGHT

Knoll Turned Him Down and He Knows He Must Keep in Shape.

Dayton, O., March 11.—Punch Knoll saw Jimmy Wacker a short time before he left Evansville for Dayton. He is looking better than he has for several seasons and expects to pitch winning ball wherever he is this year. Wacker belongs to Springfield, Mass., but is holding out on that club.

When Wacker is right he is one of the best southpaws that ever graced a hill in the Central league, but for the last three years he has not been right. It took a turn-down from Punch Knoll, one of Wacker's best friends, to make him realize he must get in shape and stay in shape if he is to continue in baseball.

Wacker pitched some great ball for Evansville in 1908. His heaving did a great deal towards winning the pennant for Punch that year. The next spring found Jimmy at Cincinnati. He didn't try to keep in condition and lost out with the Reds. Pittsburg claimed him and held him for a while, but his habits were not of big league caliber, and he drifted to the American association, where he pitched some good ball and some bad.

When Punch was appointed manager of the Vets in 1910 he said to President Redelle: "Get Jimmy Wacker for me and I'll win the pennant for you."

Punch knew Jim had been dissipating since he left Evansville, but he thought he could handle him all right and get first-class pitching out of the clever southpaw.

For once Punch guessed wrong. Wacker straightened up for a while and then went back to his old habits. He wasn't in shape to pitch winning ball for the Vets during the two years he was here, and that is why he didn't. When Punch loaned him to Fort Wayne last season Jimmy began to see that he was in wrong. He cut out some of his bad habits and pitched some fine ball for Jimmy Casey.

But it wasn't until Punch traded him to another league and for a pitcher of whom he knows practically nothing that Wacker came to his senses. He now realizes that he must have been pretty bad when his good friend Punch didn't want him around, and the way that trade has straightened him up makes Punch believe Jimmy will come back into his own as a pitcher this season.

If he does, no man will be happier than Punch. Even if he does not want Jimmy for his own club Punch is pulling for the southpaw to make good again and go to the big leagues where he should be today.

LINDNER IS TO PRETTY TO WORK

Says That Women Are Running After Him All Day Long.

FAILED TO APPEAR

Fred Lindner is too handsome to work. He admits himself and adds that women are running after him all the time and he can not observe the vows he made when he was married to Mary Lindner. This is what she said about him in the trial of a divorce complaint today.

He did not show up for the hearing although he entered suit against her and she filed two cross complaints. Judge Yaple has the matter under advisement. Mrs. Lindner said her husband made a specialty of representing himself as a single man and engaging himself to young women. She accused him of infidelity and said that after he sued for divorce he begged her to live with him again and she tried to but his conduct was such that she was compelled to leave him. He is a fireman and extra engineer on the Pennsylvania.

Charged With Abandonment.

May Hinkle was given a divorce from Charles Hinkle on proof that he had abandoned her and failed to provide for her.

In the superior court today James M. Paulsell was given a divorce from Lillie Belle Paulsell, whom he charged with cruelty.

Louis Long is after a divorce from Clara Long on the ground that she did not attend properly to the duties of her household. Colerick & Hogan filed the suit.

Papers in the divorce suit of Clyde R. Rhamy against Ruth M. Rhamy have been withdrawn from the files because of sensational charges made in the complaint.

A compromise under which John H. Bass agreed to accept $3,500 for damages done by the Fort Wayne and Springfield Interurban Railway company has been arranged and a suit for $10,000 that he filed will be dismissed. He charged that the company encroached on his land in building its road.

Children are much more likely to contract the contagious diseases when they have colds. Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold. That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. For the quick cure of colds you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

DID NOT TALK TO COLONEL.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 11.—Andrew Carnegie contributed money to help defray expenses involved in Colonel Roosevelt's African expedition, but the contribution was made after Mr. Carnegie had talked to Col. Wolcott, of the Smithsonian institute. Colonel Roosevelt never asked Mr. Carnegie to contribute a cent for any purpose. This information is contained in a statement made here by Mr. Carnegie. He does not say what sum he contributed.

SENATOR WORKS HITS TAFT HARD

Californian Says Campaign for Re-Election is Humiliating.

TAFT LIKED VISITS

Washington, March 11.—Senator Works, of California, in a speech advocating a single presidential term of six years today, declared that such a constitutional change would spare the American people "the humiliation of a spectacle of a president traveling up and down the country, guarded by an army officer and private detectives making political speeches and urging his own re-election.

"It was an unfortunate day for this country when one of its distinguished, honorable and well beloved citizens inaugurated the system as a candidate for president of receiving delegates at his home and discussing political questions, ostensibly for their information but in fact to be sent broadcast throughout the country. That was the beginning of an evil and wholly inexcusable custom by which the great office of president of the United States was brought down to the level of self-seeking politics and personal appeals for office."

RECEPTIONS PLEASE TAFT.

Pittsburg, March 11.—With more congratulatory telegrams stowed away in white house portfolios than he has received on any recent trip, President Taft passed through Pittsburg today on his way east from Chicago and Toledo. Most of the messages of praise referred to his Toledo speech Friday night, in which he denounced the recall of judges and the recall of judicial decisions. Discussing the trip, the president said:

"The receptions accorded by the people of Toledo and Chicago put me under a deep sense of obligation to them. The discussion of questions of government brought forth many sympathetic assurances and the American citizens of foreign birth or descent, of whom several great audiences were composed, seemed especially interested and concerned in the outlines of constitutional problems. The spirit of optimism, of faith in our institutions, of confidence one in another, is as strongly in evidence as at any time in the history of our country."

GOVERNMENT FIGHTS HARD.

Chicago, March 11.—Government counsel today vigorously attacked the motion of the defense in the packers' trial to have the case taken from the jury and the ten defendants discharged. They argued that the government had conclusively proved its case against the packers, charged with criminal violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and urged Judge Carpenter to deny the motion presented by the defense.

MEXICAN REBELS LICKED.

Mexico City, March 11.—The rebels have lost 150 men in a battle near Gome Palacio acording to a special dispatch from Torreon today. The federal casualties have not been reported.

The rapid fire guns of the federal force created great havoc in the rebel ranks and caused them to take to flight in a panic.

S.S.S. PURIFIES BAD BLOOD

Bad blood is responsible for most of our ailments, and when from any cause it becomes infected with impurities, humors or poisons, trouble in some form is sure to follow. Muddy, sallow complexions, eruptions, pimples, etc., show that the blood is infected with unhealthy humors which have changed it from a pure, fresh stream to a sour, acrid fluid, which forces out its impurities through the pores and glands of the skin. A very common evidence of bad blood is sores and ulcers, which break out on the flesh, often from a very insignificant bruise, or even scratch or abrasion. If the blood was healthy the place would heal at once; but being infected with impurities which are discharged into the wound, irritation and inflammation are set up, the fibres and tissues are broken, and the sore continues until the blood is purified of the cause. S. S. S. is Nature's blood-purifier and tonic, made entirely from roots, herbs and barks. It goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impurity, humor or poison, restores lost vitality, and steadily tones up the entire system. S. S. S. neutralizes any excess of acid in the blood, making it pure, fresh and healthy, and permanently cures Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Boils, and all other skin eruption or disease. Book on the blood and any medical advice free.

DES MOINES IS HOLDING PRIMARY

Third Election Under Her System is in Progress With Big Vote.

RECALL IN OAKLAND

Des Moines, Ia., March 11.—The third primary election to be held under the commission form of municipal government is in progress here today with indications pointing to heavy balloting despite stormy weather. A feature of the election is what is expected to be a large vote cast by women in the school election where a proposition to teach sex higiene in the grades is an important question. The only straight ticket in the municipal contest is that of the socialists, whose ticket, however, is split upon the ballots. Socialists have made a vigorous campaign and say they are confident of representation in the council.

PETITION FOR RECALL.

Oakland, Cal., March 11.—Resolutions demanding the recall of Mayor Mott and the entire city administration were endorsed at a socialist meeting here today. Socialists of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley attended the gathering. Selig Schulberg represented the socialists of San Francisco and the San Francisco labor council, and J. Still Wilson, socialist mayor of Berkeley, led the attack on the Mott administration. Recall petitions, it was announced, would be started immediately. Seven reasons were stated in the petition for the recall of Mott and his subordinates. Among them were charges that the water front had been turned over to corporate interests and that contracts for work on the new city hall, amounting to $500,000, had been let illegally.

AGED COUPLE BURNED.

Erie, Pa., March 11.—Mrs. John McCumber, aged 85, was burned to death today, and her husband, aged 92, was probably fatally injured in attempting to rescue his aged wife at their farm house, two miles from Cransville. Mrs. McCumber was ill in bed and Mr. McCumber was preparing breakfast when the fire was discovered. Before neighbors could help McCumber had been overcome with smoke and the roof had fallen in on the old couple. ThTe man was later dragged from the ruins, but his wife was incinerated in bed. The body with arms, legs and head burned off, was found after the house had been destroyed.

CARD OF THANKS.

To our friends and neighbors. We wish to express our most sincere thanks for the many kindnesses shown us in our sad bereavement.

SAYS THEY'RE ALL RESERVING SEATS

Republicans Climbing Into Roosevelt Bandwagon, Asserts Mr. Stults.

HEADQUARTERS HERE

"They're all reserving seats in the bandwagon," declared A. W. Stults, who has been active in the organization of the Roosevelt republican movement in this city, this afternoon, referring to the rank and file of his party. "And there are only a few seats left, but fortunately there are only a few republicans who are still out of the Roosevelt fold," added Mr. Stults. "We're going to try to make the district unanimous for him."

Louis N. Litman, of Lagrange, who was last week elected Roosevelt manager for the Twelfth district, is in the city today, and announced that district headquarters for the Roosevelt propaganda would be opened in Fort Wayne. From this city will be sent out tons of literature and the Roosevelt district campaign will be directed from this point.

Mr. Litman, with R. M. Waddel, of Lagrange, and W. O. Genke, of this city, will attend the organization meeting of Roosevelt men in Whitley county this evening.

THE FIRST GRAY SIGN OF OLD AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of the Hair and Make It Grow.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle and your druggist will give your money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance. Special Agents, Meyer Bros. Co.

ELGIN BUTTER QUOTATION.

Elgin, Ill., March 11.—The quotation committee of the Elgin butter board this afternoon declared butter firm at 29 cents a pound. Output for the week 750,000 pounds.

Grant, elected as republican in 1868, and again in 1872, had never had anything to do with the party that elevated him. Indeed, before entering the army he voted for a pro-slavery democrat.

Washington was a planter. Monroe, Johnson and Roosevelt classed as politicians when elected to office. William Henry Harrison, Taylor and Grant came out of the army. The other nineteen presidents were lawyers.

WHEN SPRING'S DEEP MUD COMES

Interurbans Will Prove Great Help to City's Merchants.

COUNTRY PEOPLE CAN COME TO TOWN

Spring Thaw Will Put the Country Wagon Roads in Bad Condition.

When the country wagon roads break up their winter condition, the condition they have been in continuously for many weeks—months, it can be said—there is going to be some mud, mud that will probably send the wagon wheels down almost to their hubs, and make all but the macadmized roads in the country districts practically impassable for vehicle travel. It will not be stretching things at all to say that the mud will be a foot deep.

The experienced care-takers of the public roads in the country unite in saying that the coming spring is going to be the hardest on Indiana thoroughfares ever experienced, and many farmers and others, knowing the condtions that are sure to come, have taken advantage of the deep froze-crusted roads of the last several months to do as much of their heavy hauling as possible. The frost throughout Northern Indiana is two feet deep and when the permanent thaw comes it is going to take quite a long time before man yof the country roads will be in a condtion to be conveniently traveled.

As a result of this state of affairs the interurban railroads that network the country are going to profit. They will be used more extensively than ever for the travel between the farm and the city. Undoubtedly they will reap a rich long time before many of the country where they stretch their metal rails the farmer at every crossroad will avail himself of their use—the farmer and his family—to come to the city with butter, eggs, etc., to trade. And but for this comparatively modern method of travel he would, in a very large measure, be shut out, mud bound in his country home.

And in this respect, electric road intercommunication, Fort Wayne and Northeastern Indiana is splendidly equipped. In addition to the seven steam railroads centering here there are five interurban lines leading in and out of the city; the Toledo & Chicago leading to Waterloo and Kendallville, the Ohio Electric to Van Wert and Lima, the Fort Wayne & Springfield to Ossian and Decatur, and the two lines of the Fort Yayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, one branch going to Huntington, Wabash and Lafayette, and the other to Bluffton and Muncie.

Scattered all along these five interurban lines are towns, hamlets, and settlements that by means of the electric cars enable their people to get to Fort Wayne any day of the week and any time of the day even though the mud on the country roads is a foot or two deep. People living close to these lines can also get here in the same way. Hence, the break-up of the mud roads in the spring is not going to bring the stagnation to city trade that in the years not so very long ago was the case. The people in the country, at least in those sections of it through which the interurban lines run, can get to the city.

The five interurban railroads centering here are great Fort Wayne trade-bringers. They bring many hundreds of people here every day from nearby cities and towns, and very many of the country people also. They come here to trade. The interurban is a trade-bringer in fair or foul weather, in summer or winter, in times when the wagon roads are good or bad. It puts the city and country and the towns along its line next-door neighbors.

IS FOREMAN AT THE LIGHTS.

Gustave F. Rogge Succeeds John J. Bauer, Who Has Resigned.

Gustave F. Rogge, who for twelve years has been a machinist at the Fort Wayne Electric works, has been appointed to the position of foreman of the arc light department at the works, succeeding John J. Bauer, whose resignation was handed to the factory management Saturday. Mr. Rogge, who is skilled as a machinist and intimately acquainted with all the work of the department, entered upon his foreman duties today.

JOHN J. BAUER.
Resigned as Foreman at Fort Wayne Electric Works.

Mr. Bauer has been in the position he quits for the past nineteen years, having given the company most efficient and faithful service. He had been at the works here for twenty-two years, coming here from Brooklyn, N. Y., where he had previously been employed with J. J. Wood for three years. He is widely known throughout the city and has a host of friends at the Electric works and in the city.

GUSTAVE F. ROGGE,
Appointed Foreman at Fort Wayne Electric Works.

In reply to The Sentinel's inquiry, Mr. Bauer stated that he intended going into business for himself. He, however, has not announced definitely what his plans are in that direction. He is arranging for a vacation trip of ten days or two weeks and on his return will make his plans for the future known.

RAILROAD EMPLOYES' WAGES.

Has Been a Substantial Increase During the Last Year.

Substantial increases were made in the wages of railway employes in the fiscal year 1911, according to statistics just made public by the bureau of railway economics at Washington.

Reports filed with the interstate commerce commission show that the total compensation to the employes of railways more than 500 miles long was $1,005,277,249, being greater by $41,868,822 than it would have been at the rates of pay in effect during 1910, and greater by $60,297,678 than it would have been at the rates of pay in effect during 1909.

Notwithstanding an increase of 2,108 in the miles of railway operated, there were fewer employes on the pay rolls June 30, 1911, than on June 30, 1910, by 1,037, yet the total compensation to employes during 1911 was greater than that paid during 1910 by $49,976,216.

Rev. A. R. Evans Delivered Helpful Talk to the Men.

The speaker at the afternoon religious service Sunday at the rooms of the Railroad Y. M. C. A. was Rev. A. R. Evans, the pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church. His discourse was a most interesting and helpful one, a plea for the living of a Christian life. At the opening of the meeting Rev. Evans, who is a cultured singer, rendered a solo, "The Man of Galilee," which touched the hearts of his hearers. It was his first address at the association rooms. He has, however, spoken at several of the noonday shop meetings and his work among the railroad men has been productive of great good.

DIVISION STOREKEEPERS.

The division storekeepers of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, twelve in number, are holding one of their periodical conferences in this city today, the meeting with Charles P. Cherry, the division storekeeper of this division, extending from Crestline to Chicago. The meeting is held in the assembly room at the Pennsylvania shops.

RECEPTION TO MISS GOULD.

Miss Helen Gould will be at Peru on on Wednesday of this week. She will reach there at 6:43 a. m. and leave at 11:05 p. m. on the same day. Two general receptions have been planned, one at 4 o'clock for women and another at 8 o'clock for men. A meeting will be held at the Peru shops at 12:30 o'clock that noon and will be attended by Miss Gould.

INDUSTRIAL NEWS.

George Ruck, of the Electric works, has returned to work after an absence of ten days.

Louis Smith and Jesse Ebersole are new employes in the testing rooms at the Electric works.

The freight movement on the Pennsylvannia road out of Crestline and Bucyrus, O., is now very heavy.

Ph. Sanford is a new machinist helper and Ernest Wahrenburg a new boilermaker helper at the Wabash shops.

J. B. Hurley, of Springfield, Ill., general foreman of road engineers, of the Wabash company, was in the city today.

Earl G. Kickley is a new employe at the Pennsylvania tank shop. He was formerly employed at the General Electric Lamp works.

J. W. Mooney, who has been employed at the Pennsylvania flue shop, has resigned his postion there to accept employment out of doors during the spring and summer months.

E. W. Delagrange, of the Pennsylvania paint shop, and wife are visiting for a few days in Chicago. Pennsylvania Painter F. H. Burg is also in Chicago.

H. J. Conway, who has been employed at the Fort Wayne Electric works for some time, has resigned his position and accepted employment at the Wayne Oil Tank works.

The Electro-Technic club will meet in the assembly room at the Fort Wayne Electric works tomorrow evening. A. B. Morrison will give an illustrated talk on "Gas Producers."

S. D. Melsheimer, railroad editor of the Sentinel, who has been out of the city since Saturday, called away by the death of his brother, will return home this evening and resume his duties on this department tomorrow.

The Pennsylvania wreck train was called from here to Monroeville Sunday afternoon to make repairs to a freight car which broke down on the tracks at that place. No cars were derailed and but slight delays resulted to traffic before the trouble was righted.

President James Ramsey, jr., of the Ann Arbor railroad, passed through Fort Wayne Sunday on Wabash passenger train No. 2. He was accompanied by Mrs. Ramsey and traveled in his private car. Mr. Ramsey was formerly president of the Wabash railroad.

Members of the C., H. & D. wreck crew who have been at work for the past two days at Talmage, about fifteen miles east of Fort Wayne, have completed the work of clearing the tracks at that point. Cars of a freight train left the tracks there on Friday and considerable damage was done to the company's property.

DR. DRAYER IS AGAIN ITS HEAD

Annual Election of the Playgrounds Association is Held.

PLANNING NEW FIELD

Dr. L. Park Drayer, who has been at the head of the Playgrounds association since its organization in Fort Wayne, was again elected president at the annual meeting held Sunday afternoon at the public library, and other officers chosen were as follows:

DR. L. PARK DRAYER,
President Fort Wayne Playgrounds Association.

First Vice President—O. N. Guldlin.

Second Vice President—Senator Stephen B. Fleming.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Elizabeth J. Dawson.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Samuel Taylor.

Field Secretary—Mrs. Frankie J. Rabus.

Treasurer—Mrs. Gart Shober.

The offices of recording secretary and field secretary are new positions, and other places were filled by the re-election of the old officers.

New Athletic Feld.

Chief interest in the meeting centered about the announcement of plans for the creation of another athletic field during the summer season, and it will be dedicated to the Shop Baseball league, which has steadily contributed its revenues to forward the playground movement. President John Wessel, of the shop league, was in attendance at the meeting and explained that the league desires that the funds it contributes be expended for some permanent improvement and not for current expenses.

President Drayer said the association would at once take up negotiations to secure the additional athletic field, and a committee representing the association will confer with the shop league official regarding the work.

RURODE STORE 52 YEARS OLD

Big Dry Goods Institution Celebrates an Anniversary.

HAS A PROUD RECORD

The Rurode store is today celebrating its fifty-second anniversary in Fort Wayne, and this famous old dry goods establishment is able to look back with pardonable pride upon a record that has been uniformly successful and progressive from the day its doors were opened back in 1860 down to the present.

Originally the firm name was MacDougal, Root & Co., but it finally became the Rurode Dry Goods company, though throughout its history there has been comparatively little change in its management. E. C. Rurode, who is still president of the company, was its moving spirit from the first. He came to Fort Wayne from Terre Haute, and has been prominently identified with Fort Wayne business interests for more than half a century.

At first located on Columbia street, the store was in 1874 removed to the Hamilton hall building, its present location, and here it has continued to grow until time and again enlargement of its quarters has been necessary, until the company is widely recognized as one of the leading dry goods houses of the entire state.

E. C. Rurode, jr., is vice president of the company and is an assistant to his father in the direction of its affairs. No small share of credit for the company's success is also due to C. A. T. Krimmel, secretary and treasurer of the company, who has been identified with the big enterprise since boyhood.

PARK BOARD PUT IN TREE ORDERS

Four Thousand Seedlings to Be Cultivated by the Superintendent.

ASK FOR BOULEVARD

Members of the park board at their session Saturday placed orders for four thousand seedling shade trees that will be shipped here and cultivated at the city greenhouses by the park superintendent.

These will be purchased at an outlay of a cent and a half each and in the course of a couple of years will be worth about a dollar apiece and it is figured that this will be a big saving to the city. Superintendent Goers supplied the list from which the order was taken and it embraces all of the best varieties.

The board also received the first copies of the annual report from Joseph Singmaster and the others will be ready for delivery in a short time. The pamphlet is very attractive, beautifully illustrated and the board pronounced it most satisfactory.

Residents of Maple avenue have imbibed the spirit of civic beautification and filed a petition to have the thoroughfare declared a boulevard under the park law.

This gives the board the right to establish a building line which the residents want fixed at thirty feet from the front of the lots. This line has been maintained so far, but there is no way of forcing future observance except through the action of the board. The matter was taken under advisement.

UNCLE SAM AS A BOOZE-MAKER

Experience on the Panama Canal Zone Not Profitable.

HE HAS A DISTILLERY

Panama, March 6.—The Panama canal commission has terminated the lease to Antonio Andrade, a Greek, of a distillery and some twenty-three hectares (a hectare is 2.4704 acres) of cane land, situated near Gargona. The distillery, which is about the largest on the zone, having two copper stills of 12.25 and 18.90 litres capacity, was bought, along with some 327 acres of surrounding land, because it was in the way of the canal. This was in August, 1908.

A commission of award, appointed according to terms of the treaty between the United States and the republic of Panama, and consisting of two Panamans and two Americans, adjudicated the claim of the owner, the same Andrade, and awarded him $90,000 for his distillery and the 327 acres, comprising the hacienda Andrade. The high cost was supported by the fact that it was a well-paying concern, with an illimitable field for its product, and situated on the Chagres, with easy communication by water and by rail.

Authorized to Lease.

A distillery on the hands of a canal-building commission develops features classically attributed to the white elephant. Doubtless there were men on the government forces who were capable of operating the distillery, and many who would have willingly have received the perquisites of the office. Considering the adulteration of liquor, which is practiced in Colon and Panama, there would have been virtue in the government's insuring a pure supply of spirits by making them itself. But the commission had no desire to dabble in the liquor business.

But here was a valuable property which would not be destroyed by the canal work for three years. Two big stills, cane mills, engines, tanks and a fine crop of cane grown up at the very doors. "Efficiency" is the match-word here, and so the words, "Why stand we here idle?" of Patrick Henry, the inciter to war, may have occurred to some of the army officers. At any rate, permission was given by the secretary of war to lease the distillery and some of the adjacent cane land.

Andrade Lost It All.

And so went into operation the only commercial distillery owned by the United States. Andrade paid for its use $1,500 the first year, from January 13, 1909; for the next year $300, and for the next $100. The decrease in rent was because the cane which was there when the government turned it over became exhausted, except through the efforts of the tenant. Any "single taxer" knows that he ought not to pay rent for his own improvements.

The advancing canal work demands the end of the happy arrangement. The rejoicing Andrade appears as a Dr. Faustus, pledged to surrender all. And the pity is it is about all he has. When his $90,000 was awarded, $15,000 was won from him in court by people to whom he was indebted. It seems that the claims were mortgages given for gambling debts and they were not outlawed. And after he got the remaining $75,00, people who know him say, Andrade could not hold onto it. He gained local honor as an easy mark, investing and lending at the behest of the human hawks in a way to show that skepticism can never overthrow faith. The good old fellow may feel himself a martyr on the altar of theology, but they say that when he reflects on the facts he doesn't feel theologically inclined.

Six other distilleries in the canal zone, owned by private persons, pay the government over $2,000 a year in taxation. The taxes have been levied according to the Columbian law, which was in effect when the United States took charge, but a new system has been devised by the canal zone government, and is being inaugurated.

Law and Order.

Now, all the interest the government of the zone has in the liquor business is collecting taxes and licenses, guarding the purity of the stuff sold and preserving the peace against its effects. With the latter it has had little difficulty. In December, 1911, out of 538 arrests, seventy-five were for "intoxicated," or "intoxicated and disorderly;" in November the number was eighty out of 536; in October, seventy-four out 620.

In December twenty-three nations, or forty-five states and principalities, were represented by native sons or daughters at the bar of zone justice. Considering the zone has such an assorted population, about 50,000 in number (it was 50,090 in June, 1908; a new census is under way), the order preserved is remarkably good.

HAD A NUMEROUS PROGENY

From Female Kidnaped In Peking in 1861 All Chinese Lap Dogs In the West Are Descended.

Peking dogs, as they formerly were called—otherwise, Chinese lap dogs—have a curious history. On October 8, 1861, an Anglo-French soldier ransacked the imperial summer palace at Peking and took back to his captain a little dog that was supposed to have belonged to the empress. At any rate, her majesty made frantic attempts to regain the little creature, and the English officer finally struck a bargain, through Chinese emissaries, that it be sent as a present from the Chinese ruler to her majesty, Queen Victoria of England.

Good feeling was thus established all around, and the little dog, bearing the name of Looty, was domiciled at Buckingham palace. He was a very lonely little creature, the other dogs taking exception to his oriental habits and appearance, and when the prince and princess of Wales returned from a continental trip the latter pleaded with her mother-in-law to be allowed to take Looty to Sandringham. About six months later Looty's mate arrived from China, and the breeding of this species of dog became a diversion in fashionable society.

Not many years ago a number of ladies got together material for a dog show and called it an "Association of the Dogs From the Palace of Peking." Looty, who had long since passed to the future good or evil place for dogs, was represented by a very numerous progeny. From Looty, indeed, all Chinese dogs known to Europe and America are descended.—Harper's Weekly.

The Real Thing.

"I s'pose," remarked the landlord of the tavern, "that Dave Splann is what you'd call a man-about t wn? He once short-changed a circus ticket seller; and another time he took out to supper two soubrettes that had een doing refined song and dance, interspersed with tumbling, at Hefty Mitchell's Oh-You-Kid moving picture theater; and throwed an oyster stew right into an electric fan, just to show that he didn't care for expense. Aw, Dave's a reg'lar rounder, if there ever was one!"—Puck.

CHILDHOOD'S OATH IN COURT

"Cross My Heart and Hope to Die," Causes Merriment In Atlanta Hall of Justice.

That childhood oaths are dearer to her than that prescribed by the code of Georgia, and carry more meaning than any set form used in criminal courts, was shown by Miss McCall, a pretty and attractive young woman who was called to the witness stand in the Fulton superior court.

The prosecuting attorney was endeavoring to confuse her on cross-examination, and was endeavoring to impress upon her the fact that she could not possibly remember a seemingly unimportant incident which happened on December 22, 1911.

"Are you sure about that?" he queried, gazing at her sternly.

"Yes, sir," she answered positively, smiling and showing an attractive line of white teeth.

"But will you swear to it?" he asked. "Remember an oath is a solemn thing."

"Hold up my right hand and cross my heart," she earnestly answered, and then gazed around in mild astonment at the outburst of merriment which rippled across the court room carrying many back to their younger days, when "Cross my heart and hope to die" was the most solemn of all oaths.—Atlanta Constitution.

PHILOSOPHIC TURN OF MIND

Not Many Would Have Described Misadventure In the Terms This Boy Used.

As Miss Easton got into the elevator at a certain big school house the other morning she saw a boy, whom she was sure was one of "her boys," standing in a corner. He had a pair of crutches on which he leaned heavily, and Miss Easton, who knew she had seen him sound and well only the day before in one of her classes, excl'med in amazement:

"Well, well, what on earth are you doing with crutches?"

"I met with a slight accident a few months ago," replied the boy in a voice she did not recognize, and as the elevator stopped at that moment he lifted his hat clumsily and got off. Then she saw that one of his legs was gone and that he was not one of her boys.

"The 'slight accident,'" explained the elevator man to the perturbed teacher, "was being run over by a train, having one of his legs cut off, his skull fractured and his right hand badly mashed!"—New York Press.

WRONGED TEXAS WIVES USE GUN

Affinity Tragedies Numerous There; Punishment Seldom Follows.

SOME RECENT CASES

Fort Worth, Tex., March 11.—The elopement of Mrs. Lena Sneed, wife of J. B. Sneed, a millionaire Amarillo banker, with Albert G. Boyce, jr., and the murder of Boyce by J. B. Sneed here January 13, is only one of a series of "affinity" tragedies in Northern Texas within a few months. Several wives have slain their husbands or the "other woman," all being of good families and several wealthy.

The young wife of a rich Abilene real estate dealer finds her husband at the home of a negress and fills him with bullets.

The wife of an editor loves an affinity more than her husband and she kills her husband.

A bride shoots her husband down on the street after he deserted her for another.

Another bride, only eighteen years old, kills her husband in the home of his first wife.

And every one of these women was either acquitted or never brought to trial. Why? Because in Texas protection of the home is regarded as man's or woman's first right. Texas juries are swayed more by sympathy and unwritten law than those of any other state. And there have been many cases in the state during the past year in which the slayer, man or woman, was not even brought to trial.

More than a year ago Mrs. Mattie Brooks, prominent in Fort Worth church circles and living with her husband, Judge M. M. Brooks, in a splendid mansion, received in her home Mrs. Laura Binford, who was alone in the world. Even while she was staying at the Brooks home, according to the testimony at the trial, Brooks and Mrs. Binford were having wrongful relations. Later, when she left the Brooks home the judge bought a home for her own, and in it a child was born. Mrs. Brooks up to this time had been merely suspicious. But one day, when she tried to get her husband at his office over the telephone, the wires crossed and she overheard her husband talking to Laura Binford. This, she said, is what she heard:

"Hasn't the old hen caught on yet? Ha! Ha! And she thinks you're going to Dallas on business, does she? Well, we'll have a good time. Good-bye, love."

Naturally she was furious. But she was a devout Christian and, as she said at the trial, she calmed herself, prayed for Mrs. Binford—prayed that she might become a better woman. But the illicit relations did not cease. So one March afternoon she put on her furs and muff and put a revolver in the muff and went downtown to the Fair, where Mrs. Binford was forewoman of the dressmaking department. Mrs. Brooks, heavily veiled, was not recognized. She asked for Mrs. Binford, and the latter approached her with a smile. Mrs. Brooks drew the revolver from her muff and fired six bullets into her body.

She killed her, she testified, "for Christ's sake," only after she had sought counsel in prayer.

Mrs. Brooks was acquitted, and she and her husband are now living together here, apparently happy. It took a tragedy to bring them together.

Nearly a year ago at McGregor, Texas, T. E. Streight, owner of the McGregor Mirror, was shot dead as he lay asleep in bed. His wife was the only person with him. At her trial in Waco it was alleged that she had an affinity. Her defense was that her husband killed himself, but according to testimony he must have been asleep when the shot was fired.

Public sentiment against Mrs. Streight had been so strong that when a judge of the court of criminal appeals granted her bail he was hanged in effigy. But the lower court set the date for trial so early that she was not able to get bail.

She was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. She was ill. Had been brought into the court room on a stretcher to hear her verdict. She was granted a new trial, and at Gatesville she was acquitted.

November 18 Mrs. Alma Pugh, nineteen years old and married less than a year, shot and killed her husband, Nor Pugh, twenty-four, at Denton, thirty miles north of Fort Worth. Their parents live here. She shot him down on street just after he had left for his place of employment in the Rock Island offices. Several months previously he had refused to live with her because "she was too much trouble." He went to St. Louis, Chicago and other cities, and she followed on his trail. She caught up with him in Denton and begged him to take her back. He refused, and was turning away when she drew a revolver and fired three bullets into him, killing him almost instantly. She has never been put on trial.

Prosperity, with wine and women, proved the undoing of Homer Trout, a live stock commissioner, who was making good money. He has been married four years and had been happy with his wife until he began to have plenty of money. Then there were long auto rides and drinking parties at cafes, leaving his wife at home. On the night of December 9 Trout and several rich friends went to the Germania cafe with two girls. Mrs. Trout, as usual, was at home with only a bulldog for company. Suddenly her phone rang.

"Say," said a feminine voice, "your husband is having a gay time down at the Germania with a little blonde."

Throwing on a wrap and taking a revolver from under her husband's pillow, she went directly to the Germania. The glare of electric lights dazzled her eyes, the music of an orchestra reached her ears and she heard laughter and clinking of glasses. She stood scanning the revellers until she spied her husband and his party at a table. She walked up facing him. Trout had just lighted a cigarette and was laughing. The laugh died on his lips as his wife confronted him.

"Now, I've got you," she cried, as she drew the revolver from her muff and fired a bullet into her husband's brain. Instantly she was overwhelmed with passionate grief. "I've killed my boy! I've killed my boy!" she wailed. She declared afterward that she thought the revolver was unloaded, as Trout had told her it was; that she did not intend to kill, but only to frighten him.

Mrs. Ruth Salyard, who was Trout's companion, tried to console with and help her. She visited her home and defended her action.

"We both loved him," Mrs. Salyard declared. She herself had been separated from her husband but three months, and is but twenty years old. She is an artist.

Mrs. Trout never has been brought to trial.

Mrs. Lucy Mathison was the wife of a prosperous Abilene realty man. She is beautiful and of a highly respectable family. One day in December she was told that her husband was at the house of a certain negress. She went there and, standing on the front porch, fired through the window and killed him as he lay in bed. She was tried in Fort Worth and acquitted on the jury's first ballot.

JURY OUT 3 DAYS STUDYING GOWNS

Twelve Men Finally Decide Woman Should Have $1,500.

SHE SUED FOR $3,500

Chicago, March 11.—Twelve good men and true established for themselves an enviable record in Municipal Judge Torrison's court.

They required only three days' deliberation to determine the value of the gowns and finery in a trunk belonging to Mrs. Edward B. Leigh, No. 3838 Calumet avenue.

It was lost in the summer of 1907 when Mrs. Leigh was en route to the Adirondacks aboard one of the Graham & Morton lake steamers. Between Chicago and Grand Rapids the trunk was lost and Mrs. Leigh sued the steamboat company.

Some of the jurors were married and some hope to be. They do say that one or two have been married and say that freedom is sweet. Consequently it was a mixed jury.

Mrs. Leigh sued for $3,538, declaring that the atricles in the trunk were worth that much money. She listed every article and described them, more than 100 of them.

Now, here was a difficulty. One article was listed as a "gray crepe evening dress." The only kind of crepe that was familiar to most of the jurors is the kind that is hung on door knobs for a very sad office.

Another item was listed "white Leghorn hat," and a juror asked how many feathers were on it. If there had been an item covering a Brahma shawl he would have been even more nonplussed.

Other items were white India shawl, Japanese kimono, purple voile evening dress, Persian evening coat, London evening coat and dressing sacque.

Mrs. Leigh made a list of the value of each, told where and when she got them, and a lively tilt between opposing counsel resulted when the defense contended that so many articles could not be packed in one trunk.

Finally the case was put off and the jury retired for deliberation. After wrestling with the problem for several hours they asked another day to consider it.

Every man drew a bee line for some person of the feminine gender. Every one now knows what "voile" is. They know that there are various kinds of crepe; they know that a Leghorn hat is no relation to a chicken. Oh, yes, they know a lot about women's garb that they never knew before. Then they asked for still more time, and finally came into court with stern, set faces and the air of men who have been tried in the fire. And they returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Leigh for $1,500.

EXPERT KNOWS BIRD LANGUAGE

National Museum Man Has Made It a Study for Years.

HE "TALKS" TO THEM

Washington, March 11.—"It is possible for a man to 'converse' with birds and fowls." This interesting assertion was made by Nelson R. Wood, of the taxidermy department of the National museum.

Such conversation, however, Mr. Wood says, can not be carried on in English, French or German, but in tones familiar to the feathered creatures themselves. In explaining his assertion Mr. Wood says:

"In my study of birds and fowls for forty years I have learned what certain sounds mean to them. It is impossible to say that a certain 'language' is used by a certain breed of fowl or bird, but it can be said with certainty that all birds and fowls have a limited vocabulary of their own.

"The turkey wheen feeding has a note of contentment. When a hawk is sailing hundreds and hundreds of feet above, a note of alarm is given; when the same sweeps toward the earth there is another note sounded which emphasizes sudden danger, and urges the young to flee immediately for a safe hiding place.

Note That Calls Young.

"Then there is a note calling the young out of hiding after the hawk passes on his way. There is still another note telling one another of the approach of danger on the ground, such as a dog, cat or fox. There is a note of caution, fear and curiosity, another of defiance, challenge and anger."

Mr. Wood has studied the nature of birds and fowls so closely that he knows these sounds perfectly, and can make them so cleverly that even birds and fowls are deceived at hearing them.

According to Mr. Wood, the turkey has the greatest vocabulary of any of the domestic fowls, and the pigeon the smallest one. He explained that nature has so provided the turkey with a greater vocabulary than any other fowl or bird because he has more enemies, and the pigeon the smallest because it does not need an extensive variety of sounds, being cared for with a fleet pair of wings, which enables it to dodge danger better than the turkey.

Black Crow Smart.

The plain old black crow is one of the smartest of them all, according to Mr. Wood. The "king of the field," as the crow is sometimes called, according to Mr. Wood, is gifted with almost human intelligence and shrewdness. To explain this he gave an example. For the last twenty-five years Mr. Wood has been stationed at the museum. He has always kept a black crow in the cage in his workroom and study. Recently he took a piece of pound cake, showed it to a crow he had in a cage, then placed the cake in an envelope and sealed it up. He then threw the envelope in the cage where the crow was. The crow picked up the envelope, tore it open and got the cake.

Mr. Wood has made such an extensive study of ornithology and taxidermy that he is able to understand the "language" of the birds; he knows when they are happy, when they are distressed and when they are worried. He can answer them in return.

"Bob White" Will Answer.

The "Bob White" will not hesitate to answer his call and to fly to where the sound comes from. The "Bob White" will answer "bob white" one or two times for any one, but sooner or later it will understand the difference. But Mr. Wood knows the call of this game bird so well that when he gives a sound or answers one, he soon knows whether or not the bird is hungry, worried, tired, or has lost its mate. Mr. Wood says ornithology should be taught extensively in the schools, though he believes a successful ornithologist is one who has loved the birds and fowls from childhood.

LACK OF ENGLISH BAR TO PROGRESS

Foreigners Study Language of Their Adopted Country.

FORTY IN A CLASS

Cleveland, Ohio, March 11.—Forty men—all foreigners—meet every Sunday afternoon in room No. 22 of the Central Y. M. C. A. They are students of a class in political economy conducted by John H. Oleksiuch, assistant probation officer of the municipal court. The men study English and are preparing themselves for the rights of citizenship in this country. Among them are four who were forced to emigrate to the United States because of political oppression. Each was a man of some note in his country and each has found America to be a place of refuge. They have been handicapped in making much of a living here because of their ignorance of the English tongue. To better their condition these men attend the classes every Sunday afternoon. In addition to this they are regular attendants at a night class conducted throughout the week by Mr. Oleksiuch at Tremont school.

The men in question are Joseph Kowalczyk, Edmund Olescznski, Joseph Hoyden and Gregory Kusniewicz.

Mr. Kusniewicz is forty years old, unmarried, and resides at No. 2403 Professor avenue, S. W. He hails from Livow, Austria, and is a sculptor and painter. He has a diploma from the College of Rome, Italy, from which he was graduated in the department of fine arts. Mr. Kusniewicz has been in this country three years. At one time he presented to the government at Washington a statue of Kosciusko. Since residing in Cleveland he has assisted in decorating some of the churches here, but does not command the money that he earned while engaged in that line of work in the old country. He feels that he is at a disadvantage because of his inability to speak English fluently.

Mr. Kowalczyk is a carver of wood and lives at No. 2451 West Eleventh street. He, too, is forty years old and unmarried. He has lived in Cleveland for four years.

Mr. Olescznski is twenty-eight years of age, single and resides at No. 634 Literary road, S. W. He is an expert in the line of milling of flour and was graduated from an agricultural school in his native country, Poland. He has lived here for five years and is employed in a cooper shop.

Mr. Hoyden is thirty-seven years old, married and resides at No. 2257 West Seventh street. He is an expert electrician, was graduated from a technical school, but the best he has been able to obtain since coming to this country is a job as laborer.

The men take great interest in the classes and have attended all the meetings except when prevented from doing so by illness.

Mr. Oleksiuch, the teacher, is a protege of Emanuel Levine, judge of the municipal court, who addressed the pupils on the subject of "Ideal Americanism!" Judge Levine spoke in English and made himself understood without much difficulty.

GERIATRICS

The New Department of Medicine, Which Has to Do with the Treatment of the Aged by Material Methods—"Death Takes the Quitters"

BY JAMES J. WALSH.

(Copyright, 1912, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

AT last medical science has wakened up to the fact that special care needs to be taken of the old. There are now one-fifth more people alive above the age of sixty, it is said, than was the case a generation ago. The average length of life has increased about one-fourth, and as the average is greatly decreased by the excess of deaths under five it is particularly because of much longer life than before that our mortality average has improved so much. Scientific medicine has been occupied for many years with the question of reducing the death rate among children. A special department of medicine, called pediatrics, from the two Greek words meaning child and healing, was established about half a century ago and a special chair created for it in all the medical schools. Those who know the statistics of the death rate among children will appreciate very well how much has been accomplished by this departure. There are literally thousands of children alive now in our large cities that would not be alive if the infantile death rate of even twenty years ago had maintained itself.

Now medical science and, above all, medical education is coming to recognize that a similar benefit can be conferred upon mankind by the careful specialty of the diseases of the old. It has been too much the custom to think that old age must necessarily be associated with suffering and that the inevitable progress toward death, with its accompanying manifestations, must be accepted calmly without any possibility of much relief for them. A great change has come over the scientific attitude toward old age, however. Metchnikoff, at the Pasteur Institute, calmly discusses the possibility of man living on to 120 or, perhaps 150, if only the disharmonies of life can be corrected. Distinguished thinkers in psychology have quite seriously discussed the question as to whether death may not really be a process of anticipation in human life because of the conviction that has come to so many minds that almost any affection occurring after sixty is likely to carry the patient off. Certain it is that by will power men sometimes live long after physicians are ready to declare that death is inevitable. On the other hand, it is well known that death takes the "quitters" and that men who give up in such diseases as pneumonia or kidney disease do not last long. Tuberculosis, it has often been said, takes only the "quitters," and every man who will will to live in the early stages of the disease can almost without exception secure many years of life for himself.

Food, Rest and Air.

The great reduction in the death rate among children and the corresponding lengthening of life has come as a result of attention particularly to three things—food, air and rest. Overfeeding is only a little bit more serious than too little air or sleep. Sometimes the details with regard to these seem very trifling, but long ago Michael Angelo said, "Trifles make perfection, though perfection is no trifle." Certainly this may be paraphrased, both as regards the health of the young and the old, "Trifles make health, though health is no trifle." It is the food, its proper preparation, and especially care that there shall not be an excess of it; the amount of air, and watchfulness that there shall be an abundance of it, and the amount of sleep, and precautions to obtain the proper amount of it, that makes all the difference between health and disease, which, after all, means only discomfort, though it may have serious consequences for the old as well as for the young.

What we have learned in recent years is the definite application of principles of treatment to the old so as to obtain these indispensable requisites to as great an extent as possible, and particularly to the degree required for the special individual, for, after all, it is a question, not of treating old age, but of treating old persons, each one of whom is very different from the others. It is only appropriate, then, that the new special department of clinical medicine should be called by a name analagous to pediatrics. Geriatrics—from the Greek geras (an old man) and iatrics (healing)—has been very properly adopted for it.

There are certain noteworthy differences between those who are beyond sixty and those who are in middle life as regards physiology, pathology, tendencies to disease and resistive vitality. This is particularly noticeable with regard to the two most important functions of animal life—eating and sleeping. Long ago Hippocrates declared in one of his aphorisms, "The old stand fasting much better than those of middle age, and those of middle age much better than the young. Children are very easily hurt by lack of food." This is the keynote of eating among the old. They need less food than in earlier years, and if they insist on eating as much as formerly they suffer from it. It is rather easy to understand the reason for this. They are not nearly so active as in middle life and their heat processes within the body are much lower. As a consequence they do not burn up so much fuel, and if the fuel continues to be provided in excess for this heat engine that the animal part of man is, it will not be long before the fire box will be clogged and before processes of various kinds within the body will be seriously disturbed.

Moderation in Eating.

Above all, it is important that long established habits of eating shall not be disturbed in the older years, especially in the direction of more abundant eating than before. Many a man who after a reasonably long life of simplicity in eating comes into conditions of life where dining becomes a function and course dinners and luncheons and breakfasts a routine suffers severely from it. It is in these cases literally that men sometimes "dig their graves with their teeth." Moderation in eating is of first importance for the old.

An extremely interesting story is told of the physician of the late Pope Leo XIII. and his arbitrary regulation of certain of the habits of the great pontiff. The Pope is said to have announced to his physician one day that he was thinking of getting a new set of teeth and that a dentist should be summoned for that purpose. Leo XIII. had been one of the most abstemious of men in the matter of food and had always done an enormous amount of work. His physician, well pleased with the state of the Pope's health, which enabled him to accomplish so much in spite of his years, naturally hesitated about the change in his diet that might come with the introduction of new teeth. He declared at once:—"No, Holy Father, I shall not permit you to get a new set of teeth. We shall have the old ones repaired, but no more. You have been getting on very well with the old ones, and I have grave fears as to what might happen to your old stomach because of the work that might be set for it by the new teeth." The Pope did not get the new teeth.

Youth Has a Magnetism of Its Own Which It Imparts to the Old, Lifting Them Out of Depression and Despondency.

After eating, the most important factor for the retention of health in age is sleep. Those above sixty need more sleep than they did in middle life, or at least need to spend more of their time in a reclining position. It is not absolutely necessary that they should sleep all the time, but they ought to spend at least eight hours lying down with all portions of the body on about the same level, so as to save their hearts the necessity for pumping blood against the force of gravity. It must not be forgotten that some two gallons of blood—that is, sixteen pounds—goes through the heart about every minute. The merely mechanical labor performed by the heart muscles is enormous. The saving of a considerable portion of the heart by lying down is an extremely favorable factor for old hearts. Besides, the old should lie down for some time about the middle of their working day. If they get up a little after seven o'clock and stay up until nearly eleven the sixteen hour day should be broken between two and four o'clock by a prolonged interval of lying down. In Europe many men have the practice of reclining for a while at this time, and a good many of those who have lived long lives have had this habit of breaking the day for a time about its middle.

In recent years public attention has been very widely attracted to the question of the hardening of the arteries that occurs almost normally in old age. Arterio-sclerosis has come to be considered a dread disease that shortens men's lives. As a matter of fact, it is almost an inevitable development of the changes consequent upon the growing old of the tissues. For some reasons, such as overwork in youth, the deteriorating effect of certain diseases, overstrenuonsity of life, the abuse of stimulants, drugs and tobacco and the influence of heredity, some men develop hardening of the arteries prematurely—that is, much sooner than it should normally come. A man is literally as old as his arteries, and the arteries of these individuals have grown old before their time. There has been question of cures for arterio-sclerosis, but it is an affection to be prevented, not cured. Oliver Wendell Holmes said that a physician could cure any disease if it only came to him in time, but that the diseases of many of his patients ought to have come for treatment in the persons of their grandfathers. Something very similar ought to be said of arterio-sclerosis. It needs to be treated not when it is already fully developed, but twenty or forty years before, when the abuses in eating, drinking, working, and, above all, worrying, were making themselves felt upon the arterial system.

It is extremely important that the old should keep up their occupations, so as to prevent occupation of mind with itself to a harmful degree. Men, like machines, will rust out sooner than they will wear out. Many a man at the age of sixty or less gives up his occupation in life, thinking that now it is time for him to take a rest, and finds before long that there is no rest for him in the sense of being satisfied with doing nothing, but that if he has been much occupied during the preceding years then for peace of mind for himself he must continue to have mental occupation. Some one once said, very well, we must occupy our minds with doing things or else they will do us. That is literally true.

After occupation of mind the most important preservative for the old is association with the young. Nothing so keeps a man from brooding over the troubles of life, and even impending dissolution, than occupation with those much younger than himself in which he is deeply interested. Many a grandfather finds the very best tonic for his vitality in intimate association with his grandchildren. Youth has a magnetism of its own which it imparts to the old, lifting them up out of depression and despondency. Curiously enough, associations with those of mature or middle age have not so much benefit for the old. Often they emphasize the impossibility and incapacity for accomplishment which age more or less necessarily brings with it. When a man can help young people and be much with them, then his older years are likely to have more of happiness and health than under any other circumstance.

It has been found that it is extremely important for old age not to lapse into habits of inactivity. There is the temptation of a man well on in years to give up walking to a great extent, to ride in carriages and to sit in the house a great deal. What has been learned about the heart in recent years shows very clearly that unless it gets a certain definite amount of exercise it does not do its work as well as it otherwise would. At Nauheim, the greatest health resort for heart cases in the world, while the baths constitute the attraction, it is well recognized by the medical profession that the graduated exercise up the low grade hills which surround Nauheim which is always carefully prescribed, constitutes the most successful part of the treatment. Stokes, the greatest of English authorities at the middle of the nineteenth century, insisted that even for fatty hearts gradually increased exercise is extremely important.

It is recognized now that the tendency of the old to drop into flesh is particularly unfavorable for them. Their obesity is due to a great extent to the inactivity to which their years predisposes them, but the accumulation of fat has had two bad effects. First, because of the weight it requires the individual to carry around it furthe. discourages activity. Second, it accumulates around important organs, especially around the heart, though also in the abdomen, and hampers their activity. Great care must be exercised, then, not to permit the accumulation of fat. There is only one way to do this, eat no more than is required for the amount of exercise taken. Just as soon as the weight begins to go up beyond the normal weight for height there must be less eating and more exercise. Care must begin not when the patient is already thirty or forty pounds over weight, but when five per cent more than the normal weight for height is noted. It is not hard to get a table that will show exactly what that is.

Difficult to Reduce Weight.

When older people have once put on weight it is rather difficult to take it off. Much can be done, however, by regular exercise and proper limitation of food. This need not mean that they shall be denied all starchy substances and most of the food products that they like best, but that everything that they eat shall be somewhat limited and that certain specially fattening articles like puddings, ice cream and butter shall to a great extent be taken out of their diet. With regard to exercise they will probably need considerable encouragement. There are forms of exercise, however, that are particularly good for old people. Golf is one of these, walking, especially in company with a friend or friends, is another, and then in recent years the value of walking down stairs has been recognized. We probably owe the suggestion of this to some of the German specialists, but, American experience has shown it to be a very valuable form of exercise in taking off weight from those who are pretty well on in years.

For older women (how much weaker the comparative is here than the positive) probably the worst possible feature in their environment is the presence in the house with them of several unmarried daughters. They take all the responsibility off mother's shoulders and try to do everything for her, keep her from going out in case there has been the slightest change in the weather and want to make arrangements by which she shall be saved all fatigue. Now, fatigue is a valuable conservative process in nature. It means that a certain amount of energy has been used up, and there is always a certain satisfaction in it. It has often been called to attention that muscular exercise is really only satisfying and pleasurable when it reaches a point where it is properly fatiguing. Unless mother is allowed to have proper occupation of mind with many things that she has to do for herself and unless she is encouraged to exercise, to get out for herself, to do many things, there is danger that she may rust out sooner than wear out. Any one who knows conditions in households where the daughters try to make things too easy for mother will appreciate these remarks. Any physician is likely to have seen a number of cases in which oversolicitude for mother on the part of the daughters has, if not actually shortened life, certainly made the closing years of mother's life more full of mental and even physical discomfort than it otherwise would have been.

Exercise of Legs.

It has come to be realized very clearly in recent years that a great many of the pains and aches of the old, and especially those in the legs, are due more to inactivity than to any other factor. Old men who have to stand much suffer a great deal. As these pains and aches are worse in rainy weather, they have usually been set down to rheumatism. It has come to be recognized, however, that the word rheumatism should only be used whenever there has been an acute stage with fever and redness and swelling of joints. The other pains and aches are due to long use of muscles. Sometimes they are due to flat foot, often to enlargement of the veins of the leg, spoken of as varicose veins, sometimes to standing without any proper exercise of leg muscles. In the upright position the leg muscles are firmly contracted and the circulation in the thin walled veins is considerably hampered. Venous circulation is greatly helped by muscular contractions. Hence the necessity for some definite exercise of the legs by walking downstairs and the like, which thoroughly empties the veins.

While the return circulation is most important in the legs, sometimes the direct circulation through the arteries is disturbed. The feet of the old rather easily become cold, and it may require a good deal of warmth to restore circulation. At the end of a long day if an old person lies down with cold feet they may cause wakefulness for several hours. Sir Henry Thompson, the distinguished English surgeon, who lived to be well beyond eighty and wrote a book on old age when he was past fourscore, had the custom of putting his feet for at least five minutes just before going to bed into water gradually made as hot as he could stand. This distended the veins, brought a large quantity of blood down to the legs, and so prevented insomnia. After he had been out at a meeting or a dinner, or any other occasion that might possibly make him wakeful, he extended the time of this pediluvium and slept undisturbed for from seven to eight hours afterward.

In general it may be said that all our advance in the care of the old has come from a greater attention to hygienic details of living. There must be full occupation of mind, considerable activity of body and attention to details of health in the matter of air, water, food and bodily exercise. These, with the definite persuasion that life by no means necessarily ends with the seventieth year and only accidentally with anything less than that, and in the words of Bismarck, that while mankind is persuaded that all the good things happen in the first seventy years of life there are many pleasures in the second seventy, there seems no reason why men should not live healthy and happy considerably beyond threescore and ten without necessarily incurring any of the unhappiness suggested by the Psalmist.

THE BORROWED TIME CLUB HEARKENS TO DEAD VOICES

(Copyright, 1912, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

THERE is a land of pure delight
Where saints immortal reign;
Infinite day excludes the night
And pleasures banish pain.

It was the voice of a man dead six years that intoned the old hymn he had loved to sing in life—a thin, wavering voice that took a sharp upward turn at the end of each line.

There everlasting spring abides
And never-withering flowers.
Death, like a narrow sea, divides
This heavenly land from ours.

It was very quiet in the room where the gray haired listeners sat. Not a man of them was under the age of threescore years and ten. Most of them had known the hymn since they were boys. Here it was coming back to them in the ripeness of their years. The singer seemed very near, but they could not see him, except as this strangely intimate chamber music helped to bring them mental pictures.

The voice was that of their departed comrade, E. W. Hoard, and they had been with him many evenings when the Borrowed Time Club met to talk over the old days. He was ninety-three when he died, six years ago. He left to his club mates a tender memory—and his voice, the latter preserved on the record of a phonograph.

Another voice was saved to the living comrades, and it too sang an old fashioned hymn. "Father" E. F. Robbins, founder of the Borrowed Time Club, has been in his grave two years or more. A thin, hacking cough preceded the singing from the funnel of the phonograph, and then this:—

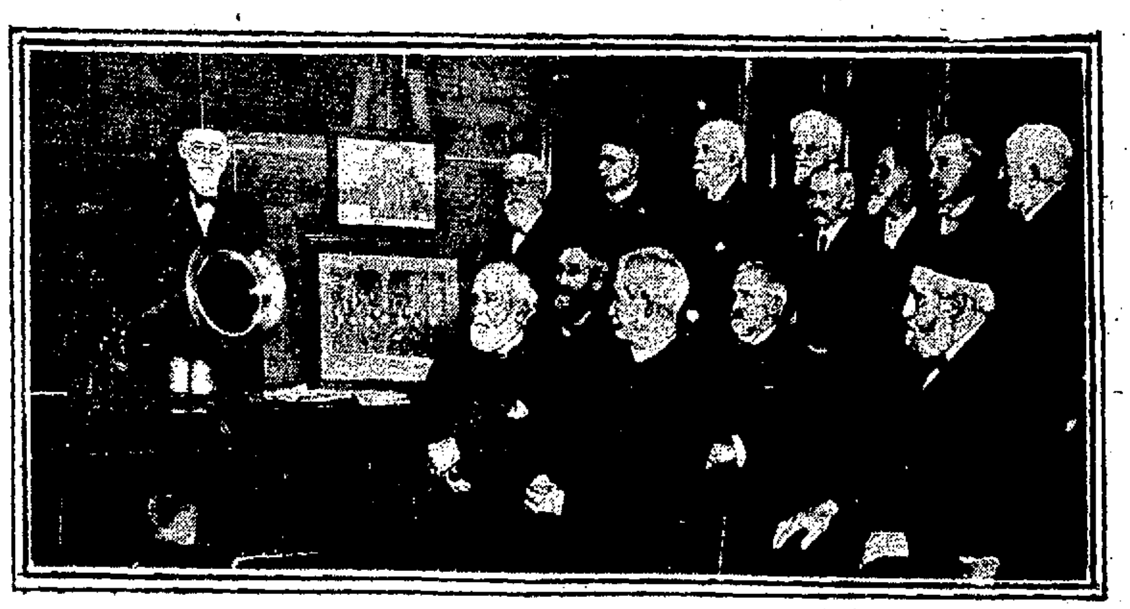
There is a fountain filled with blood
Drawn from Immanuel's veins;
And sinners plunged beneath that flood
Lose all their guilty stains.

"I've heard him sing it many a time," whispered a member of the club. "It was his favorite hymn, and he'd close his eyes, rock gently in that big chair over there and twist the wrinkles of his face into a smile. He'd sing it in the little harness shop as he worked. That's where we organized the club, and whenever I catch the smell of harness leather I think of that shop and of "Father" Robbins and the quaint way he sang to himself."

Back of the machine as the voices of the dead came out of it stood Philander Barclay, historian of the club, who had hit upon the phonograph as the means of preserving something more tangible than memories.

Mr. Barclay was master of ceremonies in this odd gathering of septuagenarians and octogenarians. The party took place in the chamber of Scoville Institute, in Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago. It was there the Borrowed Time Club came into existence, ten years ago. No man may belong to it who has not reached or passed the age of seventy years.

In 1902 a little group of men met in the harness shop of "Father" Robbins. There were many men of advanced years living in Oak Park. They felt the need of a rendezvous where they might come to tell of the days of the "deep snow" and after. There were twenty-five charter members. The club began its career with promise, and things went well for two years, but death ravaged the membership roll, and for a while there was little to do beyond paying the last tribute to departed brothers. To-day only seven or eight of the original members are alive. The club suspended its activities, but new members were drawn into it, and it has taken on what appears to be a long lease of existence. Meetings are held each week and sometimes there is an extra attraction. One of these was the phonograph feature, bringing back the singing, the chuckling and the good natured banter of "Father" Robbins and Mr. Hoard.



Members of the Borrowed Time Club Listening to Voi-- of Comrade Dead Six Years.

Mr. Hoard sang and talked for the phonograph record on September 6, 1905. A few months later he died. He had told something of his boyhood, of the simple life, of his coming to Oak Park when Chicago was much smaller than it is today. There was a short pause and the voice poured out its simple apostrophe to "the land of pure delight." The living comrades leaned forward, hands to their ears, that they might not miss a familiar word or lose an inflection.

Something like a sigh swept over the room at the finish of the first stanza. The second brought tears to a few eyes. For the third every comrade, some of them none too strong, rose to his feet and joined his own voice with that of Mr. Hoard.

Bright fields beyond the swelling flood
Stand dressed in living green;
So to the Jews fair Canaan stood,
While Jordan rolled between.

"I could almost believe," said one of the singers, "that he was standing right in front of me just the way he used to stand when he was alive—one hand in his upper vest pocket and the other holding his cane. When I hear his voice it is hard to understand that he has been gone six years. He always did what he could to make this a land of pure delight. If he is where he can look down on us to-night and hear he will be glad, I know."

Again the phonograph started. This time Mr. Barclay provided something to relieve the tense feeling. The laugh of Mr. Hoard greeted that of "Father" Robbins.

"Why, hello, Robbie!" came the words. "We weren't looking for you to-night."

"Ah, you wa'n't, eh? Well, you never can tell who's going to happen along when you ain't looking."

There was a laugh in concert down in the machine. The listeners took it up uncertainly, and for the first time in half an hour their faces lighted up with smiles and significant nods were exchanged.

"It's just the way they used to salute each other," whispered a man of seventy-five. "It didn't make any difference whether they came to the hall together or hadn't seen each other for days. It was a sort of mock ceremonial they went through and then they'd laugh just as you heard them now. They were only gray haired boys after all."

"Well, well, well! How you're getting on," said the voice of Robbie. "Mighty nigh grown up, ain't you? Congratulations and many returns of the day. Let me see, it's the ninety-third birthday, ain't it?"

"It was his ninety-third and it was his last," explained one of the party. "He died a few months after that."

"It's been a long time since we met," continued the voice of "Father" Robbins, and there was another familiar chuckle.

"Yes, a long time, Robbie. You and I are not so peart as we used to be, but I guess our hearts are young enough."

"Robbie" recited again the story he had told so many times; told of the years before he had met Mr. Hoard and the years after. It was a beautiful story of friendship, a simple tribute to a man he loved. He went back to the time when much of the present New York was a wilderness, recounted what he remembered of the last visit of Lafayette to this country, of the exciting period of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too"; of the first locomotive he ever saw, of his going West and of the growth of Chicago.

It is proposed that the Borrowed Time Club shall take the initiative in Oak Park toward the building of a club house, where men who have retired from active life may get together from day to day. Mr. Barclay is planning to take phonograph records of all the members who will consent to bequeath their speaking voices and their laughter to the archives of the organization.

L. D. Cogswell, seventy-nine years old, is president of the Borrowed Time Club. He announces that he soon will resign the honor, because he expects "to go West to grow up with the country."

CHINA'S STRONG MAN

Both Factions Offer Leadership to Yuan Shi Kai.

Crafty Oriental Turned Tide in Same Revolt by Shooting Man Protected by "Bullet Proof Oath"—Friend of the People.

Shanghai.—Yuan Shi Kai, called "the strong man of China," towards whom the eyes of all the world today are turned, has been offered the premiership by the throne and the presidency by the Republicans. It is pointed out that at the time of the Boxer war, Yuan was the one man in China who could command the respect of foreigners and at the same time unite the warring Chinese.

Yuan accepted the premiership, considering it the best opportunity to bring about peace. A few days after he had assumed these duties he told his friends that he had thought the situation over carefully and concluded that there is no hope of saving the Manchu dynasty and that a change of government is inevitable.

Yuan is said to be of lowly birth, meager education and superficial knowledge. He has never traveled beyond the borders of his own country and he speaks no language but his own. His countrymen say that the strength of his appeal to them lies in the fact that he is quite generally and firmly believed, throughout the empire, to be patriotic.

His deposition from power for three years, 1908 to 1911, was due to his having repeatedly compelled the Manchu princes to relinquish certain revenues which they were using for private purposes, that he might have money to build up the army and to institute reforms in the schools. Yuan always seemed to have in mind some ultimate benefit to the people at large, regardless of the personal wishes of the ruling dynasty.

The incident that brought Yuan to the notice of the crafty old empress dowager and the admiration of the foreign diplomats occurred while he was mayor of a small town in the Province of Shantung. The Boxer movement was strong and many of the most reputable Chinese were on the verge of joining it, when Yuan decided that he must take an impressive stand against the fanatical ascendency of this secret order.

Yuan Shi Kai.

One of the tenets of the Boxer faith was that participation in the rites of the order rendered a person immune to the effects of bullets. They believed the "foreign devils" could not hurt them with their guns.

When Yuan was invited to join the Boxers he did not dare refuse, and he did not wish to accept, because he saw defeat ahead for them.

"I will join with you," he said, "upon one condition—that you prove to me you cannot be harmed by foreign bullets."

The Boxer committee agreed to the test, and one enthusiastic Boxer stood against the wall of the mayor's garden to be shot at by Yuan himself with a new model Martini-Henry rifle. Yuan smiling explained that this test would settle for all time in the minds of the citizens how unimportant was this boasted power of the foreign devils.

The Boxer leader was reverentially entombed at Yuan's expense and prayers were said over his grave for 100 days.

This is the man of nerve, cunning and diplomacy who is being called upon in China today.

Wolf Kills Eleven Cats.

San Antonio, Tex.—An animal, believed to be a lobo wolf, passed along the fourth block of San Pedro avenue one night, and at daylight eleven dead cats were found in yards and under houses. In practically every instance the cat came to its death from a single stab or tusk wound in the breast.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., March 11.—It was nip and tuck today in wheat. The market opened easier, but quickly rallied to a new high level and then seemed to pivot around Saturday's closing figures. On the bear side, the contention was made that the advance which had taken place on account of alleged heavy exports, was unwarranted by the actual facts. May started at $1.04¾ and recovered to $1.05⅛. Upon May wheat touching $1.05¼@1.05⅜ profit taking by longs gave prices a setback. The close was weak with May ⅜c net lower at $1.04½@1.04⅝.

Unsettled weather put strength into corn. May opened at 72¼c and rose to 72⅝c.

The corn market hardened still more, owing to talk of late spring. The close, however, was easy with May at 72⅝c, a gain of ¼c net.

Oats displayed independent firmness, owing to good general demand and to the fact that offerings were light. May started at 53½c to 53¾c, but reacted to 53⅜c.

Provisions eased off as a result of weakness at the yards. The decline though was checked by grain sales. The initial sale was at a shade advance with July delivery at $16.10 for pork, $9.47½ for lard and $8.85 for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, March 11.—Gains and losses in no case more than fractional were quite evenly distributed at the opening of today's stock market. United States Steel advanced ⅜ and Lehigh Valley 1½. As an offset there were fractional declines in Union Pacific, the Eries, Reading and Chesapeake & Ohio.

The opening hesitation was succeeded by a slight decline, but the market hardened later under the leadership of Lehigh Valley. Some of the low priced specialties were active and strong. Lehigh Valley advanced 1⅜ and American Can and the American Malting stocks 1 to 1¼. Realizing sales depressed the Pittsburg Coal issues a point.

The market was inclined to ignore adverse factors abroad, including the strike of the German coal miners and threats of similar action by the workers in France. This situation together with the known condition of the coal trade at home, made the strength of Lehigh Valley the more remarkable. Among the high priced issues which gained about a point were Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, General Electric and International Harvester. Bonds were steady.

WILSON WAS EMPHATIC.

Secretary of Agriculture Figures in Land Testimony.

Washington, March 11.—"We are here to give the public scientific data, not opinions. I want this thing stopped right where it is."

Senator Fletcher, of Florida, today quoted Secretary of Agriculture Wilson as saying the above when the much-discussed circular on the drainage of the Florida Everglades was suppressed in the department.

Senator Fletcher appeared before the Everglades investigating committee and assumed responsibility for bringing the matter to the attention of Secretary Wilson. He said that the circular was called to his attention by a man named Bowen, a Washingtonian, connected with a company in the business of selling land in the Everglades. Senator Fletcher displayed some impatience that it had ever been issued.

The senator explained the preparation of the senate document on the Everglades and the criticism of it by Representative Clark. He denied that only facts favorable to the reclamation project were printed and unfavorable material rejected when he said he had simply put the facts in the document and had excluded matter submitted to him by C. G. Elliott, chief drainage engineer of the department of agriculture, because he thought it immaterial and "surplusage."

Senator Fletcher expressed his regret that the state of Florida and its officials had been put in the attitude of being party to a gigantic land swindle.

"I'll tell you gentlemen," he said, "I am much impressed by that slogan 'You gotta quit kickin' my dawg aroun'.'"

"Is the Everglades houn' a water spaniel?" asked Representative Sloan as the committee took a recess for luncheon.

SEEK SWORD OF SULEIMAN

It Is Generally Believed That the Famous Weapon Is Now in a London Antique Shop.

The famous sword of Suleiman, which disappeared from the Turkish treasury in the reign of Sultan Abdul Hamid, is believed to have been sold to some dealer in antiques in London or Paris. Tahir Pasha, to whom the sword was given by Abdul just before the latter was deposed, has told the Constantinople police that it was buried in a subterranean passage in the Yildiz Kiosk, but he has forgotten the exact place.

Tahir was a favorite of Abdul, and the story is that Tahir received the sword from Abdul, although it belonged to the state, as a reward for espionage. When the constitutional government supplanted Abdul Hamid a fruitless search for the sword was made. Recently the war minister received an anonymous letter saying that the sword was in Tahir Pasha's possession. This led to a search of Tahir's house. Following Tahir's statement that the sword is buried in the Yildiz Kiosk excavations are being made in that palace. The police doubt Tahir's story.

The sword of Suleiman the Magnificent was one of the most valuable relics in the possession of the Turkish government. Following a little habit he had, Abdul Hamid added it to the collection of priceless works of art and jewelry in the "golden cage" of the Yildiz Kiosk.

ESCAPED DEATH; NOW BRIDE SOON

Miss Williamson Has Offer from Admirer in Australia.

HALTS AT ANSWER

Tacoma, March 8.—The picture of health, Dorothea Williamson, sister of Claire, for whose death Dr. Linda Burfield Hazzard, of Olalla, starvation specialist, was convicted of manslaughter, admits that there is a man in Australia who is waiting for her "yes" to make him happy. It was his proposal, it was said by her old nurse, Margaret Conway, that brought Miss Williamson back from the valley of the shadow.

It came but a few days after the little English heiress, wasted to skin and bone, had been rescued from Olalla and brought to Tacoma prior to her going to British Vice Consul C. E. Lucien Agassiz.

"And so you are really going back to Australia to be married?" was asked Miss Williamson at the Agassiz home.

"Oh, but I haven't accepted him yet," she demurred.

Miss Conway smiled. "It's the very best thing for her," she said emphatically. "Besides, it was the very thing that made her hang on to life."

The man's name was not divulged, but he is said to be independently wealthy. Though his proposal was the only one to be considered seriously, yet there have been others and from absolute strangers, since the case was given publicity. From all over the country have come letters of sympathy from men and women, and in some of the former were offers of marriage.

"It was so ridiculous," said Miss Dorothea quaintly, "to think of absolute strangers proposing to me."

Reverting to the Hazzard trial, Miss Williamson shuddered and the color faded from her cheeks. "Oh, it was terrible," she said. "I am not fully recovered from the awful strain of it yet. Sometimes I feel weak and tired. The very memory of it is terrible to recall, and then the strain of the trial was hard. I kept up while I was on the witness stand, but afterward came the reaction, and now that the verdict is in has come another reaction.

"We are glad of the justice that has been given to us, but then, you know, not all the punishment in the world will bring back to life the one that is dead."

Many sufferers from rheumatism have been surprised and delighted with the prompt relief afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. This liniment is for sale by all dealers.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Incubators of Disease

The dangers of infection from breathing the dust and germs that are carried into the schoolroom by the shoes of hundreds of children have been a source of no little anxiety to the health authorities. Microbes of all sorts of infectious diseases find their way into the nasal passages and bronchial tubes of the pupils with the very air they breath.

Slight coughs or inflamed throats, if not given prompt attention, often develop into serious maladies, and tuberculosis finds a ready breeding place upon the sensitive membranes of the children's lungs.

Parents should never neglect the slightest symptoms of a cold in their children. A few drops of virgin oil of pine on a lump of sugar or in connection with a mixture of glycerine and whiskey is said by health authorities to be one of the most certain cures for troubles of this character and a good means of preventing the development of disease germs.

The genuine virgin oil of pine is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O., who guarantee its freshness and purity; it can be secured at any drug store in half-ounce vials, the most convenient size for home use.

Trying It On the Girl.

"Oh, it's the grand job I've got now," said a buxom Irish girl to her companion, in the subway. 'My principal duty is to sit in the parlor twirling my thumbs and listening to my lady play the pi-ano. It seems her man likes music, but she gets so fussed every time she plays in front of people that she is after having a crying spell every time. So one day she says to me: 'Mary, I wish you to leave your work and come in and listen to me practice. I want to get used to playing in front of folks.' I dried my hands and slicked back my hair and went to the parlor and there I sit one hour listening to my lady play the pi-ano and if the work is behind she never says a word. Next week she says she is going to ask in the janitor so as to make more of a crowd and I have a secret hope that she's going to ask my gentleman friend to join us some evening when the boss is out and he is calling on me. It's the finest job I've had in my seven years' experience in America."—New York Times.

Soil Enough.

Vincent Astor, at a luncheon in New York, praised the neatness of the American man's dress.

"In the past, I have been told," he said, "the American was careless—a little careless as to shaving, polishing his boots, and brushing his clothes. But he is now as neat as his English brother, who is acknowledged to be the neatest man on earth.

"Apropos of the unbrushed clothes of the past, there was an actor of the old school type who appeared one morning on the Rialto with a red rose in his dingy coat.

"'Where do you suppose I got this?' he asked another actor, lifting his lapel proudly.

"'Oh, dear knows!' the other answered, determined to escape a mash tale. 'Dear knows—unless it grew there.'"

Judge A. R. Alden has been called to Ann Arbor, Mich., by a message announcing the illness of his son, Spencer Alden.

If It's a Good Thing "Seavey's Have It"

Every Housewife

THE DILVER McCoy's Improved Glanders Fruit Press

Knows the value of a labor-saving device, without which most people could not keep house because of the great demands made upon the kitchen department.

Knows also that these articles are most convenient in the preparation of foods, especially the fancy dishes, and that with their use, you are saving time and material, thereby cutting down the general expense of housekeeping.

You are more or less familiar with the slogan of the Seavey Hardware Company, that "If it's a good thing, Seavey's have it." Following this policy, we have secured the exclusive sale of the famous DILVER Colander and general all round kitchen machine, which has the name of being the most useful kitchen utensil ever made, because it does everything but build the fire, and does it so conveniently and quickly.

The DILVER WAY will be demonstrated this entire week, during which time we will be very pleased to have you call and see for yourself.
